Study of Tactics Reveals Strained Relations

Washington—The first "crisis" of the arms conference has slowly evaporated.

France is not blocking the parley any longer but is gradually revealing the why and the wherefore of her amazing request for an immense battleship program. The national pride of the French naval experts who had been slighted while Great Britain, Japan and the United States have for weeks taken into themselves the regulation of naval ratios, the desire of the French for more submarines, and the natural effort of French diplomacy to win a more influential position in the preparations negotiations in London have all been interwoven in the policy which France has been pursuing here for several days.

Those who have been taking the French tactics seriously have lost sleep needlessly. Talk of imperiling the conference itself has been heard in many quarters where the French demand has been like a blanket of ice suddenly thrown over an otherwise enthusiastic and happy gathering. As the head of one of the delegations expressed it, the "things were going too well." He called attention to the fact that such rapid progress had been made thus far that it "was too good to be true—and something dramatic had to happen." He was one of the delegates at Paris, too, and he recalled how the impulsiveness of the French and their peculiar method of negotiating had kept both the British and American delegations on the anxious seat day and night. Nobody knew what M. Clemenceau would do next. So nobody has known here what the French delegation had up its sleeve.

WAS FRENCH BLUFF

Aside from the intrinsic interest which the episode possesses as an example of continental diplomacy, the truth is the French have not intended to go so far as to prevent an agreement on naval questions. They have sought only to show the world and Great Britain in particular that while it may be a fact that French naval strength is relatively small, this was no reason to regard France as a second rate power. The inclusion of France in the four-power pact was an effort to appease French pride but the true explanation of the French maneuver in thrusting upon the conference at the last moment a demand for a big battleship program may be found in the strained relations which for months have been noticeable between Great Britain and France.

Prime Minister Lloyd George and the British generally have felt that French policy was mistaken in negotiating a separate peace with the Turks. France, on the other hand, had felt that British policy in the Near East was a mistake in economic interest. The controversy proceeded very far when Premier Briand told the Washington conference that France expected to ask for a large number of submarines. When he left for Europe, a reporter in New York asked him what France wanted so many submarines for and he was quoted as replying in cynical vein that France wants to "fish for sardines" and investigate underwater vegetation. This remark, in French opinion, Lord Curzon made his famous speech warning France that a policy of isolation on her part was dangerous.

PLAYING TO GERMANS

Immediately therefore, the British began having conferences with the Germans about reparations payments and it began to look to France as if the British were playing closer to Germany than to France in economic matters. What more natural thing therefore than for Premier Briand to make a gesture which would indicate to Great Britain that only by French assent could the armament agreement be made. Some compensation for French approval had to be made. The prevailing view is that M. Briand instructed his delegates here to stir up the naval issue at the very moment when he was about to negotiate with Prime Minister Lloyd George on the importance to France of the building of the battleships six years hence with funds which no French economist can possibly locate in the future revenues of France for generations to come.

But when the incident blows over as seems inevitable now after the conference in London between Prime Minister Lloyd George and Premier Briand, the French will find that they have a colossal blunder. They have only strengthened what was previously a suspicion as to their erratic policies in world affairs and have driven the British and Americans closer together—something the French have never been anxious to see happen.

Bombing of New York
Tenement Hurts Nobody

By United Press Leased Wire
New York—A bomb that shook New York police headquarters was set off early Tuesday in a tenement here. On the watch for the carrying out of threats to bomb the financial district the police made ready to hustle out reserves and call ambulances when they found that the explosion was only a block from headquarters and that no one was hurt.

Good Fellows Club Fund Needs $1,000

Yesterday we tried to show that every man who drives an automobile can afford to be a Good Fellow to the poor families of Appleton who can't even afford to buy clothes enough to keep themselves warm, and today we will try to make an appeal to those far coated women who find time and money enough to belong to a lot of clubs and spend considerable money for entertaining and for good times for themselves. Doesn't it seem sort of incongruous to you, when you put on that nice warm coat to go to a nice warm house for an enjoyable afternoon and evening, to think of the poor women and children who haven't enough clothes to keep themselves from shivering in their chilly houses—chilly because they haven't enough money to buy coal and wood?

The Good Fellow club fund still is a long ways off. The $1,500 that is necessary to give the city's poor even a glimpse of Christmas happiness. Only a little more than $400 has been given thus far and it is only four more days until Christmas. All the money must be in by Saturday noon so that the bills incurred by the five relief organizations which are to have charge of its distribution can be paid. Checks should be made payable to the Good Fellows club and mailed or delivered to the Good Fellows club editor or the Post-Crescent.

Irreconcilable Senators Are Nurturing Every Locality in Which Opposition Seems

Washington—Organization of a nationwide fight against the four power Pacific treaty is under way by both the Democratic and Republican foes of the pact.

These steps are being taken to perfect an organization even more effective than that which in practically every state lent aid to the irreconcilable senators in their battle against the Versailles pact:

1. Anti-Japanese sentiment on the Pacific coast is being made the nucleus for anti-treaty organization there.
2. A woman organizer has been engaged to organize women's clubs in the middle west and northwest against the treaty.
3. Comprehensive plans for forming anti-treaty clubs and holding anti-treaty mass meetings are being sent everywhere where indications show anti-treaty sentiment.
4. Democratic political units are being urged to fight the treaty on the theory that if the Republicans could sweep the nation by 7,000,000 on an anti-league platform, the Democrats ought to be able to sweep it in the coming congressional election by opposing something they hold the country will find more obnoxious than the league.

Clew to Identity

By United Press Leased Wire
Palmyra—The "mountain of evidence" which for a week has been pointing an accusing finger at Tommy O'Connor, escaped Chicago gunman, as being connected with the slaying of the man whose body was found in a creek near here, started tumbling down Tuesday.

With the arrest and release of Bernard J. Grogan, Chicago resort keeper, the police began to clear up the O'Connor-Grogan angle of the murder mystery. Grogan was absolved from all connection with the case.

As the result of the postmortem examination, District Attorney Ray Twining said he believed the man's death occurred about the same time O'Connor made his escape from the Chicago jail and that the case was a "plain murder mystery."

Mrs. Mae Heddin, Beloit, came here Monday night but failed to identify the body as that of her son, Herbert R. Heddin, who disappeared in 1918. Chicago identification experts have obtained perfect finger prints of the dead man and said if the man had had any criminal record in Chicago his identity would be established Tuesday.

New Ruling Gives County Right

Druggist Applications

Madison—Prescription liquor is going to be harder than ever to get in 1922. W. Stanley Smith, state prohibition commissioner, Tuesday announced that all applications of physicians and druggists for state permits to dispense liquor will have to be accompanied by the recommendation of the district attorney of the county in which the liquor is to be dispensed.

At least twelve breweries and distilling plants in Wisconsin will be put out of business by refusal of the state to issue permits, Smith announced.

"A far exercise of this almost judicial power by all district attorneys will eliminate many present abuses and make unnecessary the stopping of permits and prosecution of permit holders," Smith said.

There are nearly 2,000 permit holders in Wisconsin now.

Brother of Mrs. Zimmerman, Failed to Tell Children's Father of Tragedy

By United Press Leased Wire
Oconomowoc—Louis Klug, brother of Mrs. Frieda Zimmerman, charged with first degree murder in connection with the death of her two step-children, Ruth and Elmer Zimmerman, was ordered arrested Monday night following his testimony at the inquest here.

Klug's failure to answer several questions put to him by Coroner L. F. Lee and District Attorney A. D. Young resulted in his arrest.

Klug, together with his sister, Mrs.

Zimmerman, are now confined in the Waukesha co. jail awaiting the preliminary hearing which will be held Thursday.

During the grilling, Klug admitted having come to the Zimmerman home a short time after the children had fallen into the cistern. He also is alleged to have admitted he passed the father of the children, Otto Zimmerman, on his way to town but that he did not tell him about the children because he did not want to shock him.

BE CAREFUL WHEN YOU TRIM TREE TO WARD OFF FIRES

Fire Chief McGillan Issues
Timely Warning to Christmas Decorators

Happiness associated with the Christmas season may be turned to grief if Appleton people are not careful to guard against fires, Chief George P. McGillan of the fire department warns.

The whole matter is up to the individual, the chief says, and he hopes everybody will be cautious to avoid the casualties and losses which are too common altogether.

Chief McGillan warns that when people are decorating their homes, stores or churches for Christmas they must be careful to keep inflammable materials away from candles and exposed electric wires. A little forethought for the safety of families and neighbors means much to those who might be victims, the chief says. More care in this respect also will assure the fire fighters an enjoyable holiday.

All business houses are being inspected by the department this week to remove fire hazards. The firemen will be glad to make fire inspections at the request of any firm or person.

Sharp Cut In Cost Of Traveling After Jan. 1

Transportation taxes will be lifted Jan. 1, according to William D. Basling, Northwestern line agent, who said the law requiring passengers to pay 8 per cent taxes on railroad tickets will be nullified Jan. 1. This new ruling does not affect the 50 per cent surcharge on pullman and parlor car tickets.

Appleton people who go to Milwaukee will save $3.450 a year after the tax is wiped out according to railroad officials here.

The present fare to Milwaukee is $3.87 and with the tax deducted will be $3.58. The fare to Chicago is now $7.17, with the reduction, $6.64. The fare to Oshkosh now is 76 cents after Jan. 1 it will be 70 cents. The fare to Green Bay $1.12, and after the reduction will be $1.04.

Mr. Basling has not as yet received a statement to the effect that the law nullifying the 3 per cent tax on freight will go into effect Jan. 1, but believes he will receive the notice this week.

Prices of eggs in Appleton are not as high as in several of the neighboring cities, and dealers are of the opinion that they will not go much higher. Storage eggs were selling for 45 and 47 cents Monday while fresh eggs were going out at 65 cents per dozen. Some of the stores are finding it difficult to get fresh eggs. The usual winter shortage is the cause of the present high prices, dealers say, although prices here are much lower than in other cities. The present market price has prevailed for several days.

Ought to Be in Jail
Editor, Post-Crescent.

As my name has been more or less connected with the night rider cases which have been tried at Outagamie County, may I have space for a brief statement at this time?

At the three separate trials when jurors were examined by Mr. P. J. Martin, counsel for the defendants, one of the principal things in the examination was to find out what the prospective juror knew or thought of this man, Ballard. They also tried to make it appear that in every case I was the principal one in bringing these actions, etc.

Now I wish to state that I have nothing to apologize for in anything I have said or done in relation to this matter. I have always felt that those who violated the law should be brought to account. No argument can blot out the fact, which stands out clear through the entire record, that coercion and intimidation was used by this gang in these night rides out in the farming district, and moreover, those who took part must surely know that they committed an unlawful act. If I had been guilty of one-half of what some of these men are guilty of, I should expect and ought to be in jail.

I understand a hearing on a motion to have the court direct a verdict is to be held soon, and I trust that Mrs. Black, whose husband is incurably insane, may get justice.

Yours truly,
C. B. BALLARD.

Can Women Endure More Than Men?

After seeing a woman bending over a hot, steaming tub, and then hanging things out on the line in this icy-cold air, one is inclined to think so.

But is it fair to ask this of her? Doesn't she pay for it, sooner or later? And it isn't necessary, when a telephone call will bring our representative for your bundle.

We'll do all your washing, iron all your table and bed linen, fluff your woollens, bath towels, underwear and hosiery, starch everything that needs it, and return your bundle dry, ready for the finishing touches.

Women who are having their washing done this way will tell you that it costs so very little they wouldn't think of going back to the old drudgery. Try it this week.

THE TREATY BEFORE THE DAIL

Gratifying reports come from Ireland as to the prospect of ratifying the British-Irish dominion treaty by the dail eireann. De Valera objects to the oath of allegiance to the British empire. This, it would appear, is carrying the principle on a free Ireland to extreme and untenable ground. De Valera has never objected to the inclusion of Ireland in what he prefers to call the British association of nations. He must know that no association of this kind could exist without allegiance of some kind. A union of nations necessarily implies that there must be a central, governing authority so far as the union itself is concerned. Ireland could not expect to enter the British empire without recognizing its obligations touching their common interests, imperial defense, etc.

Nations which organize or enter a union cannot act independent of each other where interests of the union itself are at stake. De Valera's position could only be upheld on the theory that Ireland would accept only complete severance from the British empire, in which event there would be nothing to discuss about terms or anything else, and the negotiations that have been going on for months would be absurd.

England having ratified the treaty, Premier Lloyd George's statement to parliament to the effect that the several British dominions would under the agreement protect the rights of Ireland, assumes important significance. The obverse deduction follows that the British commonwealth of nations also would compel the Irish Free State and England to observe the understanding. How a union could be possible on any other basis we cannot conceive. Certainly union could not be undertaken without the recognition of certain obligations such as De Valera seeks to reject. British public opinion, including that of the conservatives, seems inclined to the view that the empire is gradually evolving into the purely dominion form. Supplementing what Lloyd George said, former Premier Asquith adds: "We are only as yet celebrating the obsequies of the act of union. I do not speak with pessimism or mistrust, but I speak in the firm belief that the government has taken the right course the courageous course, and the only course."

Similarly courageous leadership in Ireland is found in Arthur Griffiths, founder of the Sinn Fein, who with Collins, Barton and Duffy signed the treaty, and who has moved its ratification by the dail. The essential fact in the whole question is that Great Britain is taking on the form of republican government, and Ireland is invited into the republic on a basis of equality and freedom. So long as the essence of dominion government is republican, the name or the oath that binds is of little consequence. Press dispatches seem to indicate that Griffiths has the people with him and that the treaty will be ratified.

GROUP INTEREST VERSUS PUBLIC GOOD

Most of the vicious influences in representative government are due to special class or group favoritism in the legislatures and the courts, and to the conventionalized wrongs and abuses of practical politics. While it is primarily the selfishness of powerful interests and organized groups that is guilty of offenses against popular government, the indifference of citizens is an important contributing cause. If the people do not take enough interest in public affairs to inform themselves as to the merits of large issues, and if they habitually shut their eyes to evils which are more or less commonplace in politics and office, they must assume the major blame for the consequences. Abnormal effects of the World war and the universal economic reaction have nurtured group selfishness. In public as well as commercial affairs there has been a per-sistential advantage of organizations to realize special advantages for themselves. It happens that the public is deeply engaged in personal matters, such as earning a livelihood, and its resistance does not take the form of action, but only of resentment.

For class hatred there is no justification. Adverse conditions cannot be rectified by retaliation. Although the public cannot organize, whereas industry, labor and agriculture can and do, it can reach fair conclusions on questions relating to the general welfare and forcefully manifest its opinion. As the cardinal law of democracy is the common good, the sound opinion of thoughtful citizens always prevails against the devices of special groups. As the economic situation is clarifying, a state of confidence is slowly developing and it will be instrumental in dissipating prejudice. Nevertheless, it is obviously the personal duty of every citizen to study carefully the issues of the times. In many respects such matters as international commerce, the tariff, taxation, the merchant marine, rail rates, rail and water transportation, class organization, perversion of justice, capital and labor, and misgovernment are of more vital moment than disarmament and peace.

FRANCE AND THE TREATY

The public will not be surprised at the announcement that France will not insist upon disturbing the allotment of warcraft for herself under the five-five-three disarmament treaty. If the old system of land-grabbing and political aggrandizement were to continue France would be justified in asking for a larger navy, but for the protection of her national, and even her colonial, interests she needs no larger navy than the Hughes plan accords her. Before he returned to France Premier Briand endorsed the five-five-three program and there really is nothing left for France to do but stand by him.

Thus far the Washington conference has managed to steer clear of the rocks of political scheming. Had the proposals for disarmament and the ten year naval holiday come from any other power but the United States it is easy to imagine the turmoil into which Europe would have been thrown and the futile controversy that would have ensued. Only a foreign policy four-square to the world permits the United States to dominate the conference and makes its recommendations irresistible.

France may be laying the basis for a larger military establishment on land than the conference would subscribe to but in her naval strength it should be clear to her that she has been dealt with fairly and in a manner commensurate with her national needs and defense. France could no more afford to oppose the program for reduced armament than could Japan. It may be a little hard for France to grasp the new era that is dawning but she will see it in its right light in due time.

SKIRTS

The girls on Broadway are wearing their skirts as short as ever. On Fifth avenue an ankle-length skirt is occasional. Most of the paraders are wearing them 16 inches off the ground, though the new ones are coming in eight inches longer than that, reflecting the present fashion in Paris.

"This will interest many women who are hearing that 'they're wearing 'em longer in the east.' We don't always hear correctly in this world."

Learning to Talk

Addressing a conference of teachers of English, Miss Alice M. Reynolds, vice president of a bank in Milwaukee, expressed an opinion that will be remembered by her hearers to prevent the deterioration of English speech. She said:

"Financial institutions require that their employees, especially those who come in contact with the patrons of the bank, shall have a cultural background. Oral accuracy, which banks are coming to insist upon, can come only through a substitution of real English—high school English, if you will—for the gutter argot which so many otherwise excellent employees have picked up. This can be accomplished only through a knowledge of the best English literature."

The English language possesses a very definite construction, and the construction is far simpler than that of the Latin language. With the observance of the rules of construction speech may be made clear and exact and if speech cannot possess these possibilities it is of little value.

Years ago we had the theory of English speech but not the required practice. Now we have the practice but not the necessary knowledge of the laws governing it. The blame cannot be charged wholly to the schools. When the people themselves have become awake to the needs of a better and more correct use of the mother tongue teaching of English also will come.—NEW YORK HERALD (Ind.)

Marshal Foch, American observers have discovered, is never tardy. Now the school teachers can put added ardor into their descriptions of his achievements.—WORCHESTER GAZETTE.

THE TEA AND COFFEE QUESTION

One or two cups of coffee with or without cream and sugar for breakfast every morning must be acknowledged to be harmless for most adults, and in my judgment should be deemed wholesome and beneficial for most adults. This is true also of one or two cups of tea with meals every day.

Coffee and in less degree tea depend upon an alkaloid called caffeine in coffee and theine in tea for their well known stimulating action upon the nervous system. An alkaloid present in cocoa and chocolate, known as theobromine, has a similar action upon the nervous system, the cocoa and chocolate are the mildest of the three beverages and coffee is the most active.

Oxygen is a powerful stimulant of the nervous system, and most of us take several drinks of oxygen every day. Nobody has as yet introduced a substitute for oxygen and therefore no extensive propaganda to discourage the drinking in of oxygen has yet been launched, but we should not be surprised to learn almost any day that oxygen is to blame for that tired feeling and the universal desire of civilized mankind to evade all labor and just loaf about or play. Somebody probably will assure us that unless we break this habit of using so much oxygen every day, so many saving devices will be perfected shortly that we'll all have to turn reformers.

Children under the age of 16, are invariably harmed by coffee and tea, and, in my judgment, by cocoa or chocolate if they use the latter habitually. It may be, as many better doctors than myself believe, that a little chocolate or cocoa made with a large proportion of milk and cream is comparatively harmless for children over 10 years of age. Still, milk is the child's beverage and why trifle with the child's nutrition? There are still, or were until recently, a few parents with so little responsibility or intelligence as to think that a little beer does a child no harm. Just such people, by similar reasoning, begin feeding young children weak tea or coffee—and wonder why their children are so nervous, so difficult to manage, so much inclined to wet the bed, so susceptible to St. Vitus' dance, so likely to develop habit spasms or tics, so precocious, and, alas, sometimes so strangely vicious in moral conduct.

Invalids and valetudinarians should be guided by the counsels of their own medical advisers as regards the use of these beverages. Too many of the self-confessed neurotics in this country are adding to the bugaboos that haunt their lives, the tea and coffee phobia wholly upon the suggestion of some fellow who would persuade them to substitute a beverage he has to sell.

According to the observations of Dr. Philip B. Hawk, professor of physiological chemistry in Jefferson Medical college Philadelphia, (Professor Hawk is not a physician), the presence of either tea or coffee in no wise retards the digestion of food in the stomach—and Dr. Hawk is the dietician of food in the stomach—and Dr. Hawk is the dietician of food in the stomach—and Dr. Hawk is the dietician of food in the stomach.

One point that skinny or undernourished folks should know is that the sense of well being produced by tea or coffee sometimes encourages the drinker in taking too little real food, deceives him with the false sense of satisfied appetite.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Is there any danger of bruise gathering under the skin? What will relieve the pain and swelling of a bruise from a fall?—(Mrs. H. R. C.)

Answer—You probably have in mind suppurative (formation of pus or matter). That may happen if a bruise if the skin is broken so that the pus producing germs may invade the injured tissues. The immediate application of ice cold moist compresses, or cold wet bandage, or a dressing moistened with some evaporating lotion such as witch hazel, bay rum, cologne water or any highly alcoholic lotion. After swelling and discoloration have occurred hot applications are better. And in the black and blue stage alternating hot and cold applications stimulate absorption and speed the cure.

Child's Feet Perspire

What can I do to overcome offensive perspiration of the feet of my boy, aged 9?—(Mrs. J. G.)

Answer—Mop the soles and between the toes, every alternate day with a solution of one ounce of formalin (liquor formaldehyde, 40 per cent) in eight ounces of water, and allow this to dry.

What causes warts, and is there any cure for them? Is muriatic acid efficacious?—(J. H. W.)

Answer—Cause uncertain. Muriatic acid is dangerous. Paint warts on the hand daily with a solution of 30 grains (thirty) salicylic acid in half an ounce flexible collodion. Warts about the face should be removed only by the physician.

Trail Of The White Mule

By Frederic J. Haskin

Washington, D. C. — There is a wooded section not far from the nation's capital which was once a favorite ground for the good old southern sport of "coon hunting." Some of the people thereabouts have been known to pay as high as $150 for a "coon dog" of good reputation. In those parts you might step a man's child and get away with it, but if you kick his "coon dog" it is a case of fight or flight.

And now most of those expensive "coon dogs" are getting fat and stiff in the joints from lack of use. The "coon hunters" are all disgruntled. The reason is not any shortage of "coons," either. The reason is that every little branch and gully which the "coons" use is now the home of a moonshine still, and if you blunder into a still suddenly and at night with a gun in your hand, you are more than likely to encounter a charge of shot.

In some sparsely settled sections not too far from the great thirsty cities, there is almost a still in every bush. Not long ago a posse was formed to chase a murderer through the woods of Virginia near here, and it is said that in 16 miles of travel they uncovered 77 stills. Usually the owners were not at hand. One of them was seen, however. He was sitting on a hilltop not far from his still. A large flock of turkey buzzards was circling around over the still, attracted as buzzards are, by the odor of the mash. The man had a repeating high-power rifle and he was shooting the buzzards as they flew over him in order that they might not betray the location of his still.

"And he wasn't missin' none, either," said a member of the posse, in recounting the episode.

The posse decided not to arrest the man. They couldn't prove that he owned the still anyway.

STILL MORE STILL

The stills are multiplying at an astounding rate. No doubt ever since prohibition there have been many stills, both for private supply and for commercial purposes, in all parts of the United States, but the great development of this infant industry is in the Appalachian Mountains and their immediate vicinity. As every reader of romance knows, it is in the mountain regions that the art of converting corn into liquor in secrecy has long been practiced. The mountain man also knows how to do it. Before prohibition there was a little still hidden away somewhere in almost every mountain neighborhood. Its owner, at some personal risk, saved perhaps 50 cents on each gallon of liquor he made by evading revenue tax.

At best he made a precarious living. Everyone who has read the magazines knows what he looked like—a gaunt, hawk-nosed citizen, wearing no socks and carrying in the hollow of his arm a rifle six feet long. Then came prohibition, and moonshine suddenly jumped from a dollar or two a gallon to ten or twenty a gallon. The result was inevitable. It was only a question of time before anyone would make money and that opportunity will be used to the full. Nor will a spice of danger in the least interfere with the proceeding. And especially is this true of the mountain men. They are adventurous fellows, they are used to breaking laws where liquor is concerned, they are accustomed to the use of firearms, and they have a sort of clan loyalty which makes it very hard for a stranger to work among them.

Not only "coon hunters," but many others whose business takes them into the sparsely settled sections, have found this out. The work of all sorts of Government field officers, has been crippled by the suspicious attitude of the natives. Thus the Biological Survey, in its work of trapping predatory animals, finds that its first and most difficult task in a given region is to convince the natives that the trappers are not looking for stills. The Veterans' Bureau in its roundup of men who were entitled to compensation, met the same obstacle.

The stills seem to have first multiplied within the mountain sections, and then to have slowly crept down into the valleys near the cities. There have always been a few moonshine stills in the Blue Ridge Mountains near Washington, but now there are a hundred in the woods along the Potomac River for every one that was hidden in the mountains 10 years ago. The men who operate these stills are for the most part of the mountain type. It seems to be literally true that the mountaineer of romance has come down from his wooded heights bringing his art of liquor-making with him.

And in coming down physically he has gone up socially and financially. That lean, hawk-nosed, seckless man has become a prosperous fellow with a good car and a bank account. Many a mountain boy and girl is getting a better education and better food, and assured social position, still faced a life of uselessness and suffering until Dr. Lorenz rescued her. Recently he came for the purpose, as he stated it, of expressing in terms of healing for crippled American children the gratitude of his people for the American relief for starving Austrian children. That mission, and the newspaper stories of his working with crippled poor children in the clinics of New York until he collapsed from weariness also appealed strongly to the American imagination and fitted into the picture which this country held of the great surgeon. But, as the SAN FRANCISCO reports, "it wasn't long before that curiously intangible and shapeless cloud of regulations known as 'professional ethics' began to oppress him," which is a number of occurrences which are calling forth indignant protests from the papers.

First, some Philadelphia doctors refused to work with him because of his nationality; then certain prominent Chicago surgeons issued a bill of particulars against him and are seeking to close Chicago hospitals to the famous specialist now the New York State Board of Education and Health has notified him that he can no longer practice in the state without a license. Discouraged by this opposition Dr. Lorenz was about to give up his mission and return home but Dr. Copeland, Health Commissioner of New York succeeded in convincing him that the American people were being misrepresented.

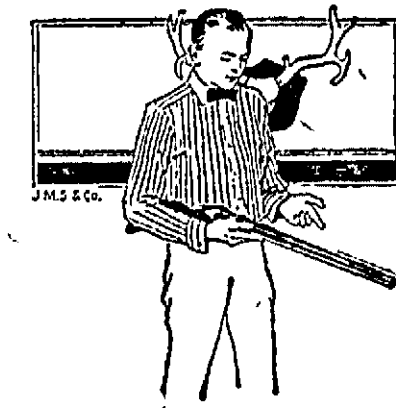

If he has, as the NEW YORK World suspects, "a rather distressing impression of American professional manners and American tolerance," it should be dispelled by the attitude of the press, because, as the PITTSBURGH SUN says, "the apperceptions of the few do not represent the opinion of the many," and for the "American public" the COLUMBIA RECORD "holly cries 'Shame upon those who offer a wanton insult to this Good Samaritan.'"

It is "a perverted patriotism," the BOSTON GLOBE WORLD NEWS holds, "which would prevent Dr. Lorenz's visit of mercy on the ground that he is, or was, an enemy alien." The SUFFOLK EXPRESS is emphatic in its position that "Dr. Lorenz's nationality does not matter," for the PHILADELPHIA PUBLIC LEDGER asks, "what do the multitude of sufferers looking for relief care for the nativity of a man whose only fighting has been against human misery and suffering?"

One of the specifications in the criticism of Dr. Lorenz, says the SPRINGFIELD UNION, "is that he has come to this country to make money." If that is a sin, the comment of the UNION is that "he has come to a country that is not without sinners." Perhaps "behind his present generosity is a lurking commercialism which intends ultimately to capitalize this newly nurtured fame," the GRAND RAPIDS HERALD concedes, but "that habit is not entirely unknown to our own excellent profession," and the NEW YORK HERALD contends that "on the point of accepting remuneration there could be no more legitimate criticism of Dr. Lorenz for receiving private fees for his services than of any American physician for taking

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

Dr. Lorenz and the Doctors

"Closed shop" practices as applied to Dr. Adolph Lorenz, the famous Austrian surgeon, however defensible they may be from the professional standpoint, are distinctly not popular with the lay public. When Dr. Lorenz visited this country twenty years ago he left behind him many legends, one of which in particular fired the American imagination—the story of the little crippled girl in Chicago, who, with vast wealth and an assured social position, still faced a life of uselessness and suffering until Dr. Lorenz rescued her. Recently he came for the purpose, as he stated it, of expressing in terms of healing for crippled American children the gratitude of his people for the American relief for starving Austrian children. That mission, and the newspaper stories of his working with crippled poor children in the clinics of New York until he collapsed from weariness also appealed strongly to the American imagination and fitted into the picture which this country held of the great surgeon. ORDER REFUNDS TO INCOME TAX PAYERS

A refund amounting to $25,000 from the internal revenue department for overpaid taxes will form unexpected Christmas gifts for about 2,500 Appleton and Wisconsin citizens, who will receive checks during this week for amounts ranging from 85 cents to $1,800, according to A. H. Wilkinson, revenue collector.

The final figure for payments of the fourth quarterly income tax shows a deficit of between $300,000 and $400,000, Mr. Wilkinson said. Slightly more than $10,000,000 was received in the payment, whereas $10,500,000 was due. Mr. Wilkinson stated that he expected only a slight reduction in the figure from late payments.

A statement on inventory forms for making out 1921 income tax returns was issued by the collector. There has been no change in the provisions of the new law in relation to inventories from the revenue act of 1918, and inventories may be valued at "cost" or "market," according to the basis adopted by the taxpayer in 1920, he says. Changes from the system adopted last year can only be made on permission from the commissioner of internal revenue, the collector said.

Mrs. Martin Walter of West Bend, and daughter Mrs. Frank L. Check of Kew Gardens, Long Island, N. Y., are visiting with friends and relatives in Appleton.

TREASURER UNDER HALF MILLION BOND

Fred L. Bachman, city treasurer is under bond for more than a half million dollars. Prior to the collection of taxes he is required to take out a bond double the amount of the county taxes. The bond this year is $499,377.50. The bond was signed up Tuesday. At the time he took his oath of office Mr. Bachman was required to furnish a bond of $100,000. The bond states the city treasurer shall faithfully perform the duties of his office of treasurer and shall fully account for and pay over according to law all state and county taxes which shall come into his hands. In such event the obligation will become void, otherwise it will remain in full force and effect.

ALL NEW HOSPITALS MUST BE FIREPROOF
Madison—The industrial commission has under consideration the advisability of amending the state building code to require all hospitals hereafter constructed to be of strictly fireproof construction, instead of only hospitals of three or more stories in height, as is provided in the present code. This is brought out in a circular letter which the commission is sending to all physicians and surgeons in Wisconsin in which it asks for an expression of opinion as to the advisability of this change.
There have been few hospitals fires in Wisconsin, but whenever a fire has occurred the very serious consequences of fires in hospitals have been emphasized. In the case of a hospital, adequate exit facilities are not enough, because many of the patients are helpless and there is serious danger of loss of life if they are disturbed or exposed.

SHEBOYGAN IN NEED OF JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOLS
Sheboygan—Concession in the public schools of Sheboygan is again becoming a serious problem despite the fact that a $1,000,000 high school is being completed.
Two junior high schools, one for the north side and the other for the south side, are being advocated by Supt. J. G. Woodward, who has the backing of the principals and teachers of the city.
The two schools would do away with the necessity for building additions to the ward schools.

PROFESSOR BECOMES MAYOR OF VALPARISO
(Special to Post-Crescent)
Valparaiso, Ind. — Found — the world's most cultured city—Valparaiso, seat of the university!
Almost everybody in Valparaiso is a graduate of the university of an employer or has children attending it. And now the town has picked Edgerton W. Agar, college professor, as mayor.
Agar's election was the result of women's influence.
Agar's been teaching 27 years. And he'll continue to teach even while he's mayor.
"I shall put class room theory into the running of public affairs," Agar says. "I'll give education away over everything. I'll abolish the spoils system."

COMMERCIAL CLUB IS CITY'S NEED

Businessmen Feel Need of Organization to Foster Cooperation

Kaukauna—Kaukauna sadly needs and ought to have a Commercial club is the statement which is receiving the consideration of several businessmen in this city. Now that the municipal building is under way, merchants are beginning to feel they need the cooperation of other merchants in order to make Kaukauna what it should be. Under present conditions there is no organization by means of which businessmen can clear up problems and difficulties which arise constantly.
"A city commercial club with a building in which to meet and hold social times would be a boon to the city," said one man. Lack of unity has made a mess of many a good move attempted by one or two businessmen, another man stated. An example of this is the closing of stores Saturday evening. No merchant knows just what was to be done. All admitted it had been the custom to close on Christmas eve, and it remained for one merchant to call the others and thus bring about the agreement to close.
In conducting cooperative sales such as was put on a few weeks ago, the need of such an organization of businessmen was clearly shown. It was said. Only a few of the merchants in the city were approached and several were missed who would gladly have joined the effort. While most of the bargains were real, shoppers were led to believe that a few of the merchants took advantage of the event to palm off their dead stock.
Just what action is to be taken regarding an organization has not been determined. It is probable that if a meeting of business men is called, steps will be taken to secure greater cooperation by means of an organization.
FUND IS GROWING
Indications are that the Christmas fund being raised by the Kaukauna Trades and Labor council will reach the goal before the time is up. While no complete report has been prepared, it is known that the fund is well over the $200 mark. All of the benevolent organizations and societies in Kaukauna will work in conjunction with the council in making a happy Christmas for the unfortunate.
A report of the committee will be given after Christmas to show the donors just how their money was spent.

SCOUT FUTURE IS TO BE DETERMINED
Important Meeting of Scout Council Called — Moose Ladies Install
Kaukauna—A meeting of the Kaukauna Boy Scout council has been called for 7:30 Tuesday evening in the Red Cross rooms at the public library. Future steps of the local council will be considered. The question of affiliating with the Appleton council will be taken up and probably will be settled.
The meeting was to have been held the last Thursday in November but was postponed because of the hunting season. It is expected that nearly all of the 40 council members will attend the meeting.
High school and park school teachers were entertained at a Christmas party Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. H. S. Cooke. The evening was spent in music, games and contests. Miss Elizabeth Stiller was a prize winner.
The Public Speaking club of the high school will present a program Wednesday afternoon in the assembly room before school closes for the holiday recess. Kaukauna public schools will be closed from Wednesday afternoon until Wednesday, Jan. 3, instead of until Monday, Jan. 9.

RAILROADS MUST INSTALL SIGNAL ON SECOND-AVE.

Railroad Commission Declines to Order Building of Subway This Year

The railroad commission of Wisconsin, in its decision relative to Second-ave. crossings of the Northwestern Railway Co. and Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power Co., a copy of which has just been received by Theodore Berg, city attorney, has ordered the railroad company to install and maintain an automatic, movable, audible and visible signal adapted for night and day indications, and the traction company to establish a safety stop for its southbound interurban cars. The railroad company is given 90 days to comply with the order and the traction company 20 days.

The city petitioned for a separation of grades which would require either a subway or overhead bridge, but the commission in its decision, which it claims is only temporary, decided not to burden the companies with the expense at this time. The estimated cost of a subway exclusive of property damage is $96,000 and the cost of an overhead bridge, exclusive of property damage, is $148,000.

DANGEROUS CROSSING
The commission finds that the crossing in question is more than ordinarily dangerous and that the improvements specified are necessary for the reasonable protection of public travel. Under normal conditions the commission says it would be inclined to favor the separation of grades in view of the physical conditions and the traffic. However, it must be recognized, it says, that the separation of grades at this point is not as urgent as are similar improvements at other points on the railroad system. Moreover, there is opposition to the project from one of the municipalities in interest.

Under the unfavorable financial conditions that now exist the commission said it believed the state should exercise great care in imposing large financial burdens upon railroads for grade separation projects, especially if it is possible to provide for the reasonable protection of the public as a temporary measure in other less burdensome ways. The improvements ordered will not interfere with the city renewing its request for grade separation should future conditions warrant such action.

The decision is signed by Louis E. Gettle and Henry R. Trumbower.

LATEST RAID NETS $300 FOR COUNTY

Coffers of Outagamie co. were enriched $300 Monday afternoon when Peter Vanden Heuvel and Fred Loessel, owner and bartender of a saloon on Appleton-st., paid fines aggregating that much. Vanden Heuvel paid $200 for having intoxicating liquor in a place licensed to sell "soft" drinks and Loessel was fined $100 for trying to destroy "evidence."

The two men entered pleas of not guilty when arraigned in court and bail was fixed at $250 each. A few minutes later, however they changed their pleas to guilty and Judge A. M. Spencer clamped on the fines.

Mr. Buck is still in doubt where a suitable Christmas tree can be obtained, but with information from a citizen living in the vicinity a search was made again Tuesday.

SALESWOMEN VANISH WITH CUSTOMER'S CASH

Janesville — Representing themselves as agents for a Milwaukee concern, two women soliciting orders from Janesville women employed here got their money and disappeared with between $100 and $200. They sold the women toilet articles and took payment and gave receipts. The women were sisters. The firm could not be located in Milwaukee.

VETERANS HAVE UNTIL 1926 TO REINSTATE RISK

War Risk Bureau Gives Former Soldiers Chance to Take Insurance

Former service men will soon be allowed to reinstate their war risk insurance at any time up to March 4, 1926, the time being extended from Dec. 31, 1921. The new law does not go into effect until Jan. 2, 1922, according to an announcement by Col. Forbes, director of the war risk insurance.

The war risk bureau has discovered that a great number of men have allowed their insurance to lapse because they do not realize their rights to reinstate and convert their insurance to one of the permanent forms offered by the government, said A. C. Dosser, service officer of the local American legion post.

There are many former service men who have dropped their insurance because they are of the belief that the time for reinstatement has passed, said Mr. Dosser, and he believes there are many others who will take out government insurance again.

The requirements for reinstatement will be as follows:
1. If the ex-service man's insurance has lapsed for less than three months and if he is in as good health as at the due date of the premium in default, he can reinstate by so stating in his written application and by paying two months' premium on the amount he wishes to reinstate.
2. If the insurance has lapsed for more than three months, it will be necessary for him to submit the report of a full medical examination in

FLORIDA SNAIL FEEDS ON BANANA RECEIVED HERE

L. C. Jens, Superior-st. grocer, is showing his friends how Florida snails make their living. A few days ago Mr. Jens received a bunch of bananas in which he found one banana on which a snail, about two inches long, was feeding. The parasite had cut the heavy banana peel and is sucking the juice out of the fruit. Mr. Jens says he cannot understand how the snail climbed the banana tree to get at the fruit.

In addition to his statement testifying to his good health and to pay two months' premium.

3. Notwithstanding these requirements, an ex-service man who has allowed his policy to lapse may reinstate his insurance at any time prior to March 4, 1926, under the following regulations.

If the ex-service man is disabled as a result of an injury or disease contracted in or aggravated by his military naval service during the world war, but is not totally and permanently disabled, he may reinstate his insurance by submitting a report of a complete medical examination to show that he is not suffering from any disability other than that contracted in the service. He also will be required to pay all past due monthly premiums which would have become payable if the insurance had not lapsed.

NO. 2

EVENING SHOPPING OPENS WELL

The cooperating merchants agreed that the week of evening shopping opened exceptionally well last night. The success of the first evening promises well for the remainder of the week.

The street car company reported a large number of travelers from neighboring points who took this unlooked-for opportunity to inspect the larger stocks of Appleton stores at night. Many visitors came from quite a distance and remarked on the fact that all local merchants were participating.

Crowds that thronged the stores up and down the avenue were decidedly reminiscent of the busiest Saturday nights, and more and more people are expected down town as Christmas eve draws near.

The special offerings of last night were well received in each instance—many lots that were expected to last two nights were sold out and merchants found it necessary to provide new special inducements for tonight. Not only were the various business men pleased with the response accorded their extra efforts but customers voiced their approval of the move. The hearty enthusiasm with which this cooperative event has been received gives good reason to hope for future ones of a similar nature.

Tonight is marked with the repetition of yesterday's special offerings and a new series of additional ones that will cause marked activity throughout the evening.

RULES ON SPECIAL OFFERINGS

An special offerings are offered for two nights, providing that stocks are large enough to meet the demand. In instances where one lot is completely sold out, merchants are endeavoring to supply equal or greater values at the same price. Specials advertised last night are in force again tonight as well as the new items mentioned below.

MANY HANDKERCHIEFS ARE MADE FOR GIFT PURPOSES

Every department store reports an amazing sale of materials for the making of Christmas handkerchiefs. Pongee in the natural color, and ginghams in all shades are most in demand for this purpose and extremely attractive gifts are made at small expense.

GIFT SHOPS DISPLAY NOVELTIES

The rise of the Gift Shop idea for the greater convenience of Christmas shoppers is a modern note that is greatly appreciated in eleventh-hour shopping. Appleton is fortunate in having a number of these shops in various stores as well as several individual shops of great merit.

In these delightful places one may purchase a gift that several years ago could be bought only in large cities. These collections are surprisingly large in each instance and imported novelties are an important feature.

Each Gift Shop centers on one or more central displays. In the individual shops the showings are devoted to beautiful prints in addition to each shop's exclusive line of art objects. Department store Gift Shops are built around large showings of china, glass and lamps; while some of the smaller gift sections for women are feminine in nature. The furniture stores have followed big city concerns in the gift shop idea and group the pieces most suitable for holiday gifts in attractive collections.

Gift Shop managers say that this year the constant demand is for the unusual in gift objects—and it has become more and more necessary to display imported stocks that have this quality.

FURNITURE GIFTS POPULAR

In contrast to recent years the present season has displayed a decided increase in the amount of furniture purchased for holiday gifts. The various local furniture stores are emphasizing the practicality of furniture for gifts, and each evening this week will see special inducements from them for holiday shoppers.

The most favored furniture for gifts are the smaller pieces—sewing cabinets, lamps and chairs.

MUCH ATTENTION GIVEN TO CHRISTMAS MUSIC

Local music dealers say that there is an unprecedented demand for Christmas music this year. The various records of Yuletide selections are especially in demand as well as musical instruments for Christmas giving.

MEN'S SHOPS ARE BUSY

Santa is laying special emphasis on his list of men this year, as is evidenced by last night's activities among the men's shops. The old rule of women and men's ties at Christmas time seems to have fallen in disuse, for women are buying other men's items in far larger quantities than they ever bought ties. One merchant remarked that the ladies select better ties for their menfolk than of old.

If the windows of local haberdasheries are typical of this year's masculine gifts, many an Appleton man will be arrayed in Solomon's splendor. There are silk house robes, elaborate examples of formal evening wear; bright mufflers and exotic pajamas on display. Many of the showings rival the windows of Michigan avenue in variety and smartness.

The woman who desires the very practical sort of gift for a man, waxes enthusiastic over the popular wool socks, shirts and the various articles of clothing. A cold winter is provided for with the purchase of heavy gloves and fur caps and coats. Several men's stores who advertised sweaters last night, met with enthusiastic response right at the opening of the evening.

And while the ladies were shy purchasing in the men's shops last night, many a man slipped away to neighboring women's stores and dropped a word in Santa's ear.

Their Unusualness

Makes Spats an Attractive Gift.

Not many people think of giving Spats and yet there isn't any woman who wouldn't like to get them, especially since Oxford's are the winter footwear vogue. Spats are just enough protection in very cold weather and worn at any time they lend an unmistakable air of trigness to the street costume. In conventional and boot top styles they follow the season's new brown and gray shades and many novelty designs are trimmed with braid or little buckles.

HEAR TESTIMONY IN FOUR CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES

Industrial Commission Here to Listen to Eight Applications

Testimony in four applications for compensation under the workmen's compensation act was taken by the Wisconsin industrial commission, represented by L. A. Turrell in the courtroom here Tuesday morning. It is probable the hearings will be completed Tuesday afternoon. Four cases were to be heard in the afternoon.

A settlement was reached in the application of William Lambie, deceased, when the Blake Construction Co. paid doctor and burial bills incidental to his injury and subsequent death. Lambie had no dependents. He was fatally hurt while driving a tractor for the Blake company September 20, and died Oct. 2.

William Vogel declared in his application that his hearing was destroyed while working for the Inter-

Iake Pulp and Paper Co. as a result of an accident in August, 1919. He was unable to work for 23 days, he said. His hearing is almost normal now, it was admitted.

Mike Price is asking compensation from the Island Paper Co. of Menasha for a series of accidents which have rendered him unfit to do manual labor. He suffered his first injury in 1916 when his hand was hurt and subsequently his eyes and hip was injured.

Compensation was asked from Clovis Stock Farm Co. by George Arndt, who said that his fingers were hurt and he was unable to do as much work as formerly.

Cases to come up at the afternoon session of the industrial commission are those of William Nelson against the Fox River Paper company; Hanson Furniture company against Fred Johnson; P. Weston against the Appleton Machinery company; George Beavitt against Combined Locks Paper company.

TEN ARRESTED AT FONDY IN RUM RING

By United Press Leased Wire
Fond du Lac—An alleged booze ring, supposed to have been operating in several counties, was broken up Tuesday by the arrest of ten men who have been under surveillance for the past year. Those arrested include a physician at Princeton, two saloonkeepers in Montello, six local men, Stanley, Joseph and Walter Popalski, brothers; Frank Grietke, Owen Hughes and Matt Bahlie, saloonkeepers, and Herman Hauser of Chilton, former proprietor of the Chilton-Fond du Lac bus line. The technical charge on which the men are held is robbery of the DuFrane warehouse on the night of Jan. 12, last, of 27 cases of whisky, property of the Watke company. Extensive operations in illicit booze is expected to be uncovered.

BIRTHS

Word has been received from Madison that a son was born Monday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hansen of that city but formerly of Appleton. Mrs. Hansen formerly was Miss Esther Anderson of Appleton.

DEATHS

MRS. WILLIAM MADSON

Funeral services for Mrs. William Madson, who died at 1 o'clock Monday morning at her home, 731 Washington-st., after an illness of several weeks will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Riverside chapel and will be conducted by the Rev. H. E. Peabody. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

Mrs. Madson formerly was Miss Meta Fredrick, was born Dec. 25, 1890, in the town of Greenville and was married to Dr. William Madson, March 18, 1913. She is survived by her husband, son, Ralph, parents, three sisters and three brothers.

ROGERS FUNERAL

The funeral of H. H. Rogers, who died at his home at Roundup, Mont., was held from Riverside chapel at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. The services were conducted by Dr. H. E. Peabody and members of the Masonic order acted as pallbearers. Among those who attended the funeral from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. John Hoberg, Green Bay; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Penhays, Wausau; Fred J. Rogers, Crandon; H. E. Rogers, Milwaukee.

The body of Mr. Rogers arrived at Appleton Junction at 5 o'clock Monday morning and was taken to the home of Miss Meidam, Carverst. It was accompanied to Appleton by Mrs. Rogers, L. A. Rogers and Mrs. Edward Blair, daughter of Roundup, who will be the guests of relatives here for a week before returning home.

MRS. THOMAS PEARSON

Mrs. Thomas Pearson, formerly of Appleton, died unexpectedly at her home in Kansas City, Mo., Monday. Announcement of her death was received from her son, Harvey Pearson, who said the body will be sent to Appleton and will arrive on the 2:45 train Wednesday afternoon. The funeral will be held at Riverside chapel immediately after the arrival of the train and the services will be conducted by Dr. John Faville of Lake Mills.

Mrs. Pearson is survived by her sons, Harvey and George. Mr. Pearson died about five years ago. The accident, with her husband, came here many years ago and were among Appleton's most prominent people. They moved to Kansas City about 15 years ago.

Several Appleton people went to Oshkosh Monday evening to see Pavlova, the Russian dancer, and her company, who they claimed exceeded their expectations.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Thursday morning in St. Joseph church with burial in the American legion plot, St. Joseph cemetery. The American legion will have charge of the funeral and will pay military honors at the grave.

The young man is survived by his mother, five sisters, Jennie, Clara, Martha and Mollie of Appleton and Sister Barbara of Notre Dame convent, Milwaukee, one brother, Leonard of Appleton.

NO DEMAND NOW FOR STORIES ABOUT WAR

Tumulty's Story of Wilson is Popular With Library
Patrons

"The public is forgetting too soon the acts of valor and other incidents of the World war," said Miss Florence Day, public librarian. Books relating to the war are not being read much these days except by students of history.

During the war and immediately after, she said, books descriptive of the war were in greatest demand.

Books on the war written by Guy Empey, which caused much excitement only a few months ago, are not called for at all these days, said Miss Day. Histories and stories of battles and actual fighting have sort of outlived their usefulness as far as World war books describing conditions and events of the war now are attracting the attention of students and the general public. J. P. Tumulty's book on Woodrow Wilson and his connection with the war is very popular just now because it has only re-

Be Careful How You Put Wires In Your Yule Tree

Public attention is being called by City Electrician F. W. Pilegel, to the wire, extensions made by persons desiring extra lights for Christmas decorations. Wiring must be done according to how at Christmas as well as other times, even though the jobs are done for only temporary lighting. He said all wiring should be inspected and that he would be glad to answer calls from the public to investigate and inspect temporary wiring. Electrical wiring is hazardous according to the city electrician, who is doing all he can to prevent fires, through defective wiring in homes and stores.

One of the most frequent causes of fires, he said, is the Christmas tree left in the home after the holidays had passed. These trees are dry and more inflammable than when first used. More fires are caused by Christmas trees after Christmas than before, he said. Children should not be permitted to light candles on the trees because they often leave them and the tree could easily become aflame without the knowledge of the parents.

etly been published, she added, but after a short time the novelty will wear off as it did in the cases of other books.

KENOSHA POLITICIAN HELD ON CHECK CHARGE

Milwaukee—Due to an oversight in protecting his check, Assemblyman Malcolm Farr, president of the Independent Ice company, Kenosha, and candidate for mayor of that city, was arrested and brought back here Monday.

The warrant charging fraudulent issue of a bank check was sworn to by Mrs. Bertha Hankins of this city. She alleges Farr wrote the check Feb. 21, 1921 and that it was returned marked "no funds." Farr was released on his own recognizance.

Woodman, Spare That Tree!

Editor Post-Crescent—If any one in this county has a fir-tree big enough to use for a community Christmas tree, I doubt if they'll want to cut it down.

The large tree used by the Pettibone Peabody Co. came from Norway, Michigan and cost—Oh, I wouldn't dare say how much!

I have a suggestion. Why not use a real live "Christmas" tree and not cut it down at all?

There is a good sized fir tree standing near the late George F. Peabody home (the house now used for a College girls' dormitory) which Mr. Peabody himself planted. I think the electric wires could easily be led to it—and it can be seen from a good part of John, Alton and Lawests. There's as much room about the tree, inside the yard as there is on Soldiers Square, and much more when you include the street and opposite lawn. What do the rest of you think about it?

I am interested to know.

E. LOUISE ELLAS.

P. S.—Wouldn't this be a good time and place to suggest the planting of fir trees in our dooryards and our parks so that our children's children may have real live Christmas trees, when there are no more to be had?

Her Health

Janet Taylor—Wife

By Virginia Lynch Maxwell

CARLIE'S voice was at once sympathetic when Janet told of Junior's illness.

"Oh, you poor dear," she said solicitously. "I was going to call you a little later and ask you to join us in the grill. But, of course, if baby's really cutting up—is there anything I can do?"

"I've tried all the remedies I have. I'd like to get a doctor. I'm afraid Junior's really suffering."

"I know the biggest man in town," Carlisle suggested at once. "I'll get him on the wire right away. And I'm sure he'll come. I know him personally, you see, as well as professionally. And quite fortunately he's a children's specialist."

In a few moments Carlisle stood at Janet's door. She looked ravishing as she walked in and posed before the mirror as if to inspect herself before Dr. McLean's arrival. She touched her full lips several times with a stick of rouge and smiled in the mirror to get the effect.

"Paul McLean's a dear fellow," she remarked absently. "I'm sure you'll like him."

It annoyed Janet for the moment that Carlisle should be thinking only of the doctor from her selfish view of personal adoration.

"Is he a good physician?" Janet asked crisply. "My baby's really ill, I think."

Carlisle wheeled quickly and eyed the girl with a challenging glance.

"My dear Janet," she said, "I told you, not a moment ago, that Paul McLean's the biggest doctor in the profession down this way. It's only because I know him so well that he decided to come over. He never takes a night call. He's doing this because I'm asking it."

"Then I do owe you my appreciation," Janet offered, "and I want you to know, Carlisle, I am truly grateful."

Dr. McLean was announced almost simultaneously with Janet's apology. She was glad that her little brother had been concluded so amicably before the physician arrived.

It was Carlisle who greeted him when he rapped on the hotel room door and she who led him over to the crib where Junior lay.

The young physician appeared clean-cut as he bent over and put the thermometer into Junior's mouth. His hair was slicked back to a shining polish and his well-built frame bespoke the athlete.

But these things did not occur to Janet at once. She was interested only in his diagnosis.

"There's nothing to worry over," he said, as he raised up again, "just a little cold."

Carlisle had taken her place beside the doctor and she stood there now, her eyes dancing in anticipation of the young physician's evidence of admiration. But he kept his eyes from her and spoke to Janet as he wiped the little glass instrument and put it back into his bag.

She was suddenly conscious of her bare back and very short sleeves as he stood looking down at her. And her consciousness turned gradually to a genuine embarrassment.

She welcomed the interval when Carlisle claimed his attention completely and used it to slip into her blue bathrobe. Winding her hair into a quick coil she pinned it carefully on top her head.

"I'm thinking you're a wicked boy, Paul," Carlisle said caressingly, "you're neglecting all your social duties."

Dr. McLean laughed, and Janet noticed his strong, white teeth.

"I know it," he agreed amiably, "but there's work to be done, Carlisle. You don't understand."

He turned again to Janet and she knew at once he recognized the change in her apparel.

"That's right, Mrs. Taylor," he said with a knowing smile. "Take care of yourself, too. So many little mothers neglect themselves caring for their babies. And it's wrong. This is a bad time of year to take cold."

Janet blushed. It was not the fear of taking cold that had inspired her putting on the heavier bathrobe. It was the piercing brown eyes of the young doctor that had embarrassed her.

"I'll do that, doctor," she agreed. "and meanwhile, is there some medicine for Junior?"

He wrote out a brief prescription

AMERICAN BEAUTIES—Miss Marilyn Miller, One of New York's Most Popular Stage Favorites, Who Is Writing "Secrets of Charm" for This Page.

at once and Carlisle watched him as he handed the slip of paper to Janet and again his eyes rested on the simple sweetness of her face and the soft, youthful curves of her chin and throat. "I'm coming around to-morrow," he announced as Carlisle walked with him to the elevator in the corridor,

"and I'm sure I'll find an improvement. But don't worry, little lady. There's really nothing these days that can't be mended."

Secrets of Charm

By Marilyn Miller

A FAMOUS scientist once said that "dirt" was merely misplaced matter. So that as it may, the modern woman who is careful of her appearance will find the same true of hair. Hair where it is unbecomingly misplaced.

Depilatories have always been. From the old Roman days when every woman aimed to be beautiful more than anything else in life, the depilatory in powder or liquid form has been used.

But no depilatory has removed the superfluous hair permanently. In fact, every woman ought to know before attempting to take off those superfluous hairs with a depilatory that the more often it is used the stronger will be the next growth. The hair is like a shaft through which there courses a certain amount of strength-giving properties. When the hair is cut or broken at its base, which is the strength of the skin to the eye, the strength of it is thrown back into the real root below the surface, and the new hair that grows is doubly fortified. That accounts for the bristly effect that results after shaving or when the depilatory is used.

Electrolysis comes next. Electrolysis is considered by many beauty doctors as the only sure method of removing the objectionable growth. But they are prone to operate the electric needle only when the patient submits to the treatment at her own risk. A few experts, however, absolutely guarantee their methods of electrolysis, but at best the process is always dangerous. Scars may result from its use.

A woman beauty doctor who has studied the growth of superfluous hair for over fifteen years makes the removal of it her life's work. She has perfected a method that is perhaps the best in existence.

The hair sets in a small socket known as the papilla. The root of the hair merely touches this base, but it is from this little base that the strength of the hair is obtained. So that, in order to remove the effect by getting down to the root, the hair must be grasped at the base, and the papilla and removing them both with one movement.

A small cake of fragrant, green compound resembling a cake of soap is broken into bits and heated in a small enamel pan. The surface to be cleaned of its hair growth is prepared by powdering over with a fine, medicated talcum. This is done, she explains, to absorb any moisture that may keep the pores from opening during the next step.

The solution is spread on to the skin with a spoon, always smearing it in the direction in which the hair grows. On the arms the direction is downward and crossways as the hair travels around the surface of the arm. It is only necessary to study the growth for a moment or two before applying to determine its general direction.

The warm substance, which resembles a paste when heated, is spread on in strips.

When quite dry, the end is grasped firmly between thumb and forefinger and with one quick motion is removed. An antiseptic solution is washed over the surface of the clean skin now and allowed to dry. Then a layer of cold cream that is fluffy and soothing is applied.

The cold cream remains until the stinging sensation that may ensue is entirely gone, wiped off with absorbent cotton and a thin layer of the antiseptic talcum dusted lightly over the surface as a finish.

Shaving, to remove superfluous hair, should never be used as a preventive. For the girl who is foolish enough to begin this method will find within a short time that the hair, instead of becoming devitalized, will take on a thicker and stronger growth with each operation.

It is the same process gardeners use to strengthen the leaves of a plant by cutting them at their base. The strength of the stem is thrown back into the root, only to emerge a little later with a stronger leaf than before. The theory is identical with the shaving process. And that too might be said of any depilatory that breaks the hair at the surface of the skin instead of delving deep enough to attack the very foundation.

The beauty doctor who has perfected this modern method does not guarantee that the hair will not return, as nothing will do that. But she does guarantee that the hair will appear finer and finer at each successive growth, until at last it loses its strength altogether and no longer grows.

Old Frames Made New

THOSE old picture frames that go begging around the attic or cellar may be made into some of the delightful new models with little trouble and less expense.

Old white enamel or oak frames may be treated as follows: With a bit of glass carefully scrape off all the enamel or polish. Sandpaper it to a smooth finish with a coarse sandpaper and later with a finer grade. For a soft brown print the frame will be just right at this stage. Some of the newest picture frames that are finding place in the best shops show no stain or color of any kind. Artists claim that the decorative frame detracts from the beauty of the picture within.

However, if your print is not so attractive as to call for complete concentration on it, the plain wood frame may be treated with a wash of sepia or a soft brown stain.

For a gray-toned print or engraving use an India ink wash, put on in any shade from light gray to black. This toning will bring out the picture to its best advantage. Once you try to experiment, you can develop all sorts of novel effects from the soft green gold some color prints demand, to the brilliant orange or blue enamel shops are displaying for small section prints.

Choice Recipes.

Dutch Salad.

OUTSIDE leaves of lettuce, one tablespoon ham fat or bacon cut fine; two tablespoons vinegar, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one teaspoon finely cut onion, one-half teaspoon sugar, dash of pepper.

Wash the lettuce leaves, cut and set in pan of cold water. Put the bacon or ham and onion over fire and cook three minutes; add the vinegar, salt, pepper, sugar and two tablespoons water. Drain and dry the salad; put into bowl and pour the hot dressing over; serve at once.

Spaghetti with Tomato.

OIL and blanch one cup of spaghetti; brush a baking dish with butter and pour in the spaghetti; pour over cream sauce and one cup of strained tomatoes; sprinkle with breadcrumbs and bake twenty minutes in a hot oven. Sauce—Put one tablespoonful of butter into a saucepan, add one tablespoonful of flour, mix, add one cup of cold milk slowly; stir until smooth; then add two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, one teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper; stir until smooth and pour over spaghetti.

Laundry Work Made Play.

WHEN we look back upon the days of our grandmothers and the way they were forced to conduct their households because science had not yet found the easier methods, there is little wonder indeed that they had no time for community work or, in fact, any activities outside their homes.

Few of us there are who would change with them. And there is little wonder when the average housewife looks about and sees the work-lessening instruments and products that have been prepared since those days and are offered to-day well within the income.

Outside of washing dishes, the most burdensome task in the household is doing the laundry work. This view is undoubtedly a remnant of the traditional idea of having to wash clothes on a board.

THE FIRST LAUNDRY WAY.

Ever since Eve washed her fig-leaf on a flat stone in the Garden, women have aimed, throughout the centuries, to get clothes clean by the friction method. It would seem as if their theory was that the more one rubbed, the more soil would be removed from the clothing.

Another fallacy that had taken hold until recently was that the work had to be done in a sloppy, steaming kitchen or laundry with quantities of boiling water, and that the whole process was generally "hard."

Clothes should be soaked over night where possible. The tub should be prepared with cold water and a proportionate amount of some good washing powder, thoroughly mixed. Then the clothes are separated, reserving the colored things for another tub, and soaking only the white clothes in the same tub. When the clothes are ready to be washed the next morning, it will be found adequate in many cases to merely rub the cake of good laundry soap on the neck-bands and cuffs of each article. The remainder of the soil will have been soaked out of the clothes during the night.

The water is allowed to drain off them. And tepid water, never hot nor really cold, takes its place. This time the soap suds are made by rubbing the clothes with the soap and plunging them up and down several times to soap them thoroughly.

Contrary to the belief of even the better laundresses, science has proved that clothes need not be boiled. If the soaking is done, that is all that is necessary to cleanse the garments, besides the soap rinsing process that follows next. But to put the clothes into a tub and boil them merely sets the dirt just as boiling a piece of material in dye sets the dye.

SETTING COLORS. Most dyes, pinks and blacks are fast. But there is no safe rule to-day owing to the poor substitute dyes that had to be used during the war days and for many seasons afterward. If the color suffers, try to set it with a solution of salt, white vinegar, borax, alum or sugar of lead, which, by the way, is a deadly poison. Any of these may be used in the proportion of one level tablespoonful to a gallon of water.

Bran water or starch water, in a very light solution, may be used in place of soap to wash the colored clothes. But if their colors are not too delicate, a good pure soap solution made of shaving a cake of soap into a quart of boiling water and mixing thoroughly until dissolved, is excellent. The clothes need only then be soaped up and down in the tepid water to which the solution is added, rinsed carefully and hung in a shady place to dry.

ORIGINAL SOAPS.

Soap and its numerous associate products is comparatively new in laundry work. The first attempt to make soap was a mixture of fat and potash, but always there was an excess of potash. The finished soap of today is one of the resultant products of the combination of a fat and a caustic alkali, either potash or soda. Both the fat and alkali break down under the force of superheated steam and their combining, form the two new compounds, soap and glycerine. Perfect soap is neutral, having no excess of alkali or acid.

If the principles of laundering, therefore, are kept in mind and the work systematized with the use of the latest scientific discoveries, laundry day ought to hold no terrors for the housewife of to-day.

Household Hints

MACARONI and chicken go well together.

CRISP celery an hour on ice water before serving.

IN making fishcakes have potatoes very dry.

WHEN canning sour fruits use medium heavy thick syrups.

WHEN making sweet croquettes, add a little sugar to the crumbs on which the croquettes are to be rolled.

IT is a good plan to have individual markings for bath towels. The initials may be embroidered in chainstitch.

TO clean a frying pan after fish or onions, boil out the pan with soda water, washing clean, and then put it on the fire and shake a little oatmeal in.

IF pots and pans used in cooking are washed as soon as emptied and while still hot, the housewife will make a 50 per cent saving in time and labor.

A GOOD substitute for mayonnaise can be made by rubbing down a dessertspoonful of mashed potato with mustard and salt to taste and a little cream instead of salad oil. Then add vinegar to taste.

AN old fowl can be made tender if it is first rubbed over with lemon juice, then wrapped in buttered paper and steamed for two or three hours, according to size. Of course, if preferred, it can be partially steamed and then roasted and still be tender.

Latest Millinery Modes.

MILLINERY modes of this year have taken a wide variety, so that the style seems almost like a revue of models of the past few seasons. Shapes range all the way from the wide-brimmed picture hat of a few seasons past, with a slight variation in the lines of the crown, to the chic little turban every school-girl adored last year.

Designers learned early in the season that black velvet, the accepted material of the smart Parisienne, would be adopted by the American woman of style without question. And straightaway they began to plan their creations with this material in mind.

A COLOR SURPRISE.

Tangent to the desire for the conservative color and material, the creators of smart millinery kept the inconsistency of womankind in mind. It would seem, and from the backs of their shops there are beginning to creep all sorts of draped shapes in brilliant Turkey red. Violet, too, is in evidence, and one is reminded of the Orient by the conglomerate displays that will soon be in the shop windows combining these three colors: red, violet and black.

The white velvet turban, with its sparkling silver ornament, is mingled with the snowy days soon to come. Yet one can almost feel the warm note of Egyptian influence in their loop-earring trimming at each side of the turned-up brim.

THE USE OF LACE TRIMMING.

Lace perhaps takes next place in popularity. It has been many seasons since the fine lace of a generation ago has been able to succeed in establishing for itself such a prominent position as to be used in millinery. It made its debut in frocks, lace trimmed and lace complete. Then it gradually began to invade the sides of the black satin Summer turbans in small tuft bows and a semi-veil effect, until at the present moment, it has gradually spread its pattern surface across the crown and brim of the conventional picture hat, and boasts its fragile ends in a picturesque bow at side, back or front as one may wish it.

White, cream and colored laces have a prominent place, too. They adorn mostly the fragile evening and restaurant millinery that needs only its soft color to make it beautiful. With but a trifle of trimming, the large transparent hat of shell pink or old blue georgette finds this season that it is smart inasmuch as it is untrimmed.

There is a becoming model just developed of orange georgette with soft ostrich trimming of the same shade around its brim. The crown is made of small triangles placed together and meeting at the top. And its only trimming is a band of very fine chestnut brown silk lace that winds itself about the base of the crown and ties in a graceful knot at the left back, with the lace ends drooping off gracefully into two long streamers.

NEW CROWN LINES.

The crowns of the newest dressy models are soft and pliable. And in these eventful days of reconstruction when dividends are falling low, the fashion note becomes a happy one in that the stiff crown of last year's hat may be remodelled easily to give the desired up-to-the-minute appearance.

Remove the lining from your hat entirely. Then with a sharp scissors, cut the buckram from the top and half way down the side of the foundation crown. Remove the cut buckram portion entirely. When the lining is carefully replaced, you will find that the stiff lines of the crown have vanished and in their place the soft velvet that was held taut by the buckram foundation will fall gracefully.

Or, if the crown cannot be removed so easily from its foundation, you can cut out the old crown away completely and fashion a new crown for your old hat of the same material or a textile that harmonizes in grade and color. For example, a panne velvet hat may have a heavy mesh-like crown substituted in place of the rigid affair of yesterday. And a navy blue velvet may have a crown flaring from its drab trim fashioned of ray peacock shade in the same material.

A little ingenuity exercised will save many dollars. And the woman who has a sense of imagination and the fashion notes of the hour to guide her, need not hesitate to boast her claim to a very complete millinery wardrobe this season.

Just What Is Temperance?

THE word "temperance" has been used for a long time to denote abstinence from alcoholic beverages. But now that that meaning has been set aside, the word is coming to look upon the word in its broader sense.

Mothers, for instance, who ardently write and valiantly preach temperance, teach intemperance to their children by allowing them to make playthings of their stomachs. They are allowing those children to grow up with an exaggerated idea of appetite and desire.

A mother will allow her child to have what some of his little playmates may possess. If little Mary comes in to tell her mother that Betty has a new doll and she must have one just like it, too, that mother breeds the germ of intemperance when she gratifies the wish. In later life, Mary will want what her neighbors have, and not being able to possess those same things or duplicates thereof, she will become unhappy through the intemperate desire.

There are scores of women preaching temperance every day who expect to go more deeply into the analysis of the word. The only evil in the world is not the appetite for alcoholic drink or tobacco; for the world is full of things that we cannot have, things that would not be good for us if we had them.

To recognize that fact and to be able to rise above it, means true temperance. And the mother who has it in her power to develop this form of self-control, which will later lead to self-respect and temperance when her children are grown men and women, will be rendering the world a service it needs more than ever before.

Smiles.

A Perfect Lady.

ONE garment I shall never wear. Till someone names it better. What low ideas come to mind! At the very name of waist!

Diplomacy.

"SEE here, young fella, what's yer opinion of the Irish question?" "Er—ah—say, what part of Ireland are you from?"

Matrimonial Dictionary.

"DOP" what is a medium of exchange? "Well, the divorce court is one."

Consistency.

"Oh, doctor, I am suffering so much I want to die!" "You did perfectly right to call me."

PLOTTED CHINESE MARRIAGE TO GET POLITICAL PEACE

Quarrel in Chinese Royalty Leads Boy Emperor's Mother to Commit Suicide

By Wm. Philip Simms
 Special to the Post-Crescent
 Washington—One more amazing chapter must be added to the international intrigue to put the deposed Boy Emperor back on the throne of China. Despite powerful efforts to keep the tragedy a secret it is now known that Princess Chun, the lad's mother, did not die a natural death as stated, but committed suicide after a scene between herself and the empress dowager.

Through a friend in Peking I have just come in possession of the strange details. The story throws into vivid relief the morbid atmosphere out of which certain British, Japanese and Chinese plotters would lift their candidate to the dragon throne.

PLAYING FOR YEAR
 For more than a year these international schemers have been promoting a match between the boy emperor Hsuan Tung, now 17, and the young daughter of Hsu Shih change, president of China.

They believe the marriage of the Manchurian emperor and the Chinese girl would please the southern Chinese and thus remove the objections to a restoration.

The empress dowager, according to my informant, is an ardent supporter of this match. The boy emperor's mother, the Princess Chun, was just as ardently against it. She preferred her great niece—daughter of her nephew and the boy's first cousin—instead.

The boy emperor himself, it is said, does not want to marry either one, his choice being his own mother's young sister in short his aunt. So with this new love triangle in full swing, the Arabian Nights atmosphere of the imperial court became surcharged with personal spite and jealousy.

ANOTHER VERSION
 Another version, has it that the court physician one day failed to show the empress dowager the respect she felt was her due, whereupon she called the boy emperor down. Prince and Princess Chun took their son's part and the quarrel followed.

Whichever story is true, the Princess Chun today lies in a suicide's grave. The empress dowager is slowly recovering from illness; Prince Chun is broken over the loss of his wife and the boy emperor is in mourning for his mother.

Still the international plotting goes on.

BLAMES AIRPLANE FOR HER LOST LOVE

Court Must Decide if Hushand and "Other Woman" Can Make Love in Clouds

Special to the Post-Crescent
 Columbus, Ind.—Can a man make love in an airplane. This is the most important question to be decided in the coming trial of Columbus' airplane divorce case—the first in American courts. The parties to the suit are:

Charles F. Crump, 47, wealthy business man, and sportsman.
 Mrs. Margaret Crump, 42, the mother of two grown daughters.

Mrs. Elta Brockman, 40, well-to-do widow with three children.
 Mrs. Crump charges that Brockman with being her husband's airplane affinity.

Crump among other enterprises is interested in an airplane business. Also he has an airplane. And it has been his custom to take friends aviating. Mrs. Crump complains that he took Mrs. Brockman aloft more often than was in keeping with conventions.

She objects not only because he took Mrs. Brockman flying, but because he frequently made Mrs. Brockman's country estate his landing field.

The last time Crump and Mrs. Brockman came down from the clouds they were met by a deputy sheriff, who served them with papers in Mrs. Crump's suit for divorce and suit for $25,000 from Mrs. Brockman for alienation of affections.

AIRPLANE ENTERED
 "We were happy until Charlie took up aviating," says Mrs. Crump. "That flying machine was bird of prey—a vulture; it swooped down on our happiness and snatched it away."

"If wives heed my advice, they will keep their husbands out of airplanes lest they turn into love birds. A husband at home is worth two in an airplane seeking the silver lining in the clouds with another woman."

But Crump and Mrs. Brockman firmly deny Mrs. Crump's charge of "too familiar a friendship." They say there is absolutely no foundation for her charges.

Crump has filed a counter-suit, charging his wife with having a jealous disposition and being cruel, causing him great distress of mind.

"Well, if I were jealous, didn't I have justification?" demands Mrs. Crump.

The airplane is likely to be made "Exhibit A" in the case. For Crump's attorneys point out that such is its construction that when Crump was flying it he had no time for anything else.

"His hands and feet were occupied with the controls," it is pointed out, "and the noise of the engine and propeller is so great that love whispers were out of the question. Any term of endearment would have to be yelled if it were to be heard, and who is going to screech out such words as 'darling'?" The idea's preposterous.

England Erects Monument to Man Who Saved Millions of Soldier Lives

Special to the Post-Crescent
 London—A simple memorial has been unveiled here to the man who, next to the Kaiser, was cursed during the war by more millions of sweating soldiers than any other man in Europe.

The memorial, unveiled in the examination hall of the Pharmaceutical Society, is to Lieut.-Colonel E. F. Harrison, inventor of the box-respirator or gas mask of which over 20,000,000 were manufactured for British and American soldiers, and which almost any soldier who has seen active service will say saved his life.

At the outbreak of the war Lieut.-Colonel Harrison was a civilian, a distinguished chemist with three degrees. He made several unsuccessful attempts to enlist, but in 1915, at the age of 47, managed to get into the Sportsmen's Battalion as a private. His entrance into the army synchronized with the first German gas attack at Ypres, and he was immediately transferred to the special branch of the Royal Engineers. He quickly became a leader among the band of chemists who made up the anti-gas department.

After many experiments he perfected the box-respirator, rendering the wearer immune from fumes of any known poison gas. He received rapid promotion, and finally became Controller of Chemical Warfare. He died in November, 1918, just at armistice time, from pneumonia, aggravated by exposure to gas during the course of his experiments. Shortly before his death he learned he was to be promoted to the rank of Brigadier-General and that he had been awarded the Legion of Honor.

French Scientist Says Nations
Can Prepare for War Secretly on Large Scale

Special to The Post-Crescent
 Paris—"The whole question of disarmament has been radically changed and rendered uncertain by the progress in the use of chemicals in warfare."

Such is the opinion of Doctor Albert

Rane, an authority on chemicals and limits of the influence of chemistry and aviation on the future warfare."

Dr. Rane emphasized the fact that almost any nation, were it so willed could secretly prepare the means for chemical war in its laboratories in peace time under the guise of peaceful activities.

As an instance of the speed with which chemical manufacture can be developed, Rane cites the manufacture of the terrific explosive yperite in France. In March, 1918, the total production in France was about 580 pounds, but seven months later the factories were producing over 1,000,000 pounds.

The French scientist believes it is nearly impossible to effectively guard against any nation developing the means of chemical warfare in peace time.

FOR "U" OF ILLINOIS
 Urbana, Ill.—Dr. David Kinley, who was elected president of the University of Illinois by the board of trustees last March, was installed recently. Installation ceremonies were held in connection with the educational conference at the university.

Following the invocation by Rev. G. H. Sherwood of Springfield, Ill., Dr. Kinley delivered the installation address, on "Relation of the States and Nation in Educational Policy."

Dr. Kinley has been a member of the university faculty for 28 years, serving as professor of economics, and later as vice president. In June, 1919, he was named to fill the unexpired term of Dr. Edmund J. James, president emeritus, who retired because of ill health.

Dr. Rane points out that at present there is no known method of determining or limiting the ability of a nation to do harm to its neighbors or enemies by means of chemicals or poison-gas. Even though its warships were scrapped and cannons and ammunition destroyed, a nation can have in its laboratories and chemical factories the means of making a terrible war with liquid fire, poison gas and deadly chemicals distributed by airplanes such as are used in ordinary commercial work.

LETTERS TO LOVERS

Nerve Sprees

By Winona Wilcox

Time was when the sympathetic husband believed in a wife's "nerves" as he did in the sincerity of her tears when she had hysterics at one in the morning. And unless he comforted her, he was for her, he accounted himself a brute.

Doubleless many women are actually the victims of some physical breakdown, and some men are genuine brutes. Nevertheless, the new psychology teaches us that "nerves" causes about 75 per cent of all diseases and that an astonishing number of these nervous persons might be cured—if they did not so much enjoy their nervous sprees.

Writes one of the older husbands: "My wife is a beautiful woman of middle age. Mentally, we haven't much in common although she is no fool when it comes to getting her own way. If she is crossed in the smallest thing, she pouts, frets or nags like a shrew. It is so childish that it disgusts me."

"Years ago I used to think her tantrums cute enough and I petted her out of them but now I'm a pretty tired business man. I need a little bettering once in a while. Since I married her, I've never had any sleep. I decide to take it wherever I can find it and then I think of my two beautiful daughters in college and decide I want to be as good as they think I am.

"My wife's temper gets worse as she grows older, and the question is, will my girls take after her? Or can I prevent it?"

"Heaven help their husbands if the man have to live as I have done."

Probably this worried father will find that his daughters have inherited his disposition to be patient.

The point of the story is that the present generation of husbands is not as lenient with "temper" as was the last. More and more men are holding wives responsible in this matter of "nerves."

This may be an unconscious reaction to the theories of the feminists and suffragists. If women, test men by high standards of conduct, they must themselves aspire to higher standards. Or the reaction may in part be due to a better understanding of "nerves" as a disease.

From that readable book, "Outwitting Our Nerves," by Drs. Jackson and Salisbury, comes this information: "Neurosis is a confidence game we play on ourselves. It is an attempt to get stolen fruit, and look at it at the same time—not in order to fool somebody else but to fool ourselves."

New Year Desserts

Perhaps there are to be so many small people at the New Year dinner that plum pudding is too rich a dessert.

Ice cream is as easily digested as any dessert, but just plain ice cream seems rather ordinary for the New Year dinner. A sauce adds much to vanilla cream, while a frozen pudding or mousse is quite as elaborate a dessert as is necessary.

There are delicious unfrozen puddings that will be relished by big people as well as little.

CHOCOLATE SAUCE

One and one-half cups milk, 1 cup sugar, 1½ squares bitter chocolate, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Grate chocolate. Put sugar and milk in sauce pan and bring to boiling point. Take out enough of this boiling mixture to melt chocolate and make of the consistency to pour easily.

Add to sugar and milk and boil five minutes. Add butter and boil three minutes. Remove from fire and add vanilla. Pour hot over vanilla cream. This can be made and kept hot over hot water for an hour.

FROZEN NEW YEAR PUDDING
Two cups milk, 1½ cups cream, 3 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 5 tablespoons flour, 2.3 cup powdered sugar, 1 tablespoon vanilla, 2 drops almond essence, ½ cup candied cherries, ½ cup candied pineapple, 1 cup nuts.

Put milk in a smooth sauce pan to scald. Mix flour and 1 cup sugar and add to eggs well beaten. Beat this mixture well and add scalding milk.

Cook over hot water till mixture thickens. Let cool and beat in cream and powdered sugar and flavoring. Add fruit and nuts cut in small pieces, turn into mold and pack in ice and salt. Let stand without turning for three or four hours.

Scrape the edges of the mixture from the sides of the mold four times during the freezing and stir with a wooden spatula to keep the fruit from settling.

NEW YEAR DELIGHT

Five eggs, 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons gelatin, 1½ cups grape juice, 1 cup chopped almonds, ½ pound candied cherries, macaroons, whipped cream.

Separate whites from yolks of eggs. Put yolks in a bowl and beat well with sugar. Dissolve gelatin in 1 cup cold water. Heat grape juice to the boiling point and add to yolk mixture.

Beat again. Beat whites of eggs till stiff and dry. Beat in gelatin and almonds. The almonds should be chopped through the coarse knife of the food chopper.

Pour hot yolks over white mixture and mix. Four into a deep pan lined with macaroons and sprinkled with a few cherries. Let set and serve topped with whipped cream and the rest of the cherries. This pudding needs no cake to accompany it.

MARSHMALLOW DESSERT

One pint whipping cream, ½ pound marshmallows, 12 macaroons, 1 cup chopped nuts, ½ cup preserved cherries, ¼ cup powdered sugar.

Whip cream till stiff. Add marshmallows cut in small pieces, macaroons rolled fine, nuts, cherries and sugar. Mix well and put in a mold to chill. Let stand three or four hours and serve in glasses.

Adventures of the Twins

Oliver Roberts Barton

THE SEARCH

Urchy Urchin did not have the Fairy Queen's pink pearl, hidden in his bushy coat. The Twins and Cap'n Pennywinkle searched him all over and there was no sign of it. So Urchy waddled away to a secret place under some rocks that he knew about to sleep.

"We'll ask all the oysters and clams next," said Nancy, brightly. "I'm sure they'll tell us if they'd found it."

She and Nick were off at once and knocked at the door of each sleeping oyster as though the British were coming. But each one assured them politely that no pink pearl had come his way. One even remarked that to have a pearl, any old kind of a pearl, had been the height of his ambition all his life, but had he found one as large as a mountain and with all the colors of the rainbow in it, the Twins should have it, because they had been so kind.

The Twins thanked him and skipped on, continuing their search. They climbed over rock beds and asked the barnacles, but hindee, they didn't seem to know what a pearl was, even! And the sponges didn't know anything about it, either, the dumplings! And the shrimps just walked off and waved their feelers. They had their minds on their own troubles as the shrimp-nets had been put out and they had to watch their step.

"And mind, you don't get caught in one of them!" warned one old fellow.

"Ladde or no ladde, Macle Shoes, or none, you'll be in a nice pickle if you get caught, and that's not a joke, for it's the very thing they do to you, the shrimp-fishers: pickle you and put you up in cans."

With this advice, he departed and the Twins started away, but to their dismay they found they couldn't move. A fine gray gauzy thread was wrapped 'round and 'round and

GAS ARMAMENT TO KEEP ON GROWING, BRITON DECLARES

Urges United States to Keep on Making Poisonous Fumes for Next War

London—Instead of dismantling their war chemical plants, the world powers should develop to the greatest extent their ability to produce dyes, stuffs and poison gas.

If they do not, they face extermination in the gas clouds of another great war in which poison gas will be the most important medium of offense.

That's the belief of Major Victor Lefebure expressed in a book he has just brought out.

Lefebure is England's greatest authority on chemical warfare. He served with a gas unit on the British front in France. Later he was British chemical warfare liaison officer.

His statement is directly opposed to the recommendations of the American advisory committee at the Washington arms conference that the manufacture of poison gas be prohibited.

"National safety demands strong organic chemical industries," Lefebure says.

CAN'T BE PROHIBITED
"No convention, guarantee or disarmament safeguard will prevent an unscrupulous enemy from using poison gas."

"Especially if that enemy has discovered some new powerful agent or possesses a ready means of producing chemicals at a moment's notice."

"Our chemical industry should be developed so that when an emergency develops we shall have the necessary facilities for supply at hand."

Lefebure points to gas as the logical offensive medium of future wars. Gas almost had superseded artillery by the close of the World War, Lefebure says. In 1917 German guns were firing 50 per cent gas and 50 per cent high explosives.

GERMAN DISARMING JOKE
The disarmament of Germany has been a joke, the British expert declares. Germany has been deprived only of her small arms and artillery—her gas facilities remain.

German gas during the World War was supplied by the Interessengemeinschaft, a vast combine of chemical factories.

Since the war that combine still exists and its ability to produce gas is as great as it was in the past. The factories themselves are flourishing because time dye trade.

Lefebure does not accuse the Interessengemeinschaft of plotting a great gas war.

"But," he says, "the potential menace is there!"

WORK FOR HEALTH AMONG CHILDREN

Special to the Post-Crescent

Mansfield, O.—Main Street has become the setting for the greatest scientific health demonstration yet undertaken in this country.

In this matter-of-fact county seat of 20,000 the physical future of the American child may be determined. Your grandchildren and mine may be what they will be because of what is being done now in Mansfield.

When the National Child Health Council set about, some months ago, to prepare to spend $200,000 on a child health demonstration that would last five years, upwards of eighty American towns bid for the honor.

That the health demonstration might be of greatest benefit to the country, the council felt it should be undertaken in a community typical of the average of American life. So Mansfield was selected, because Mansfield, on an average, is Main Street—and proud of it.

There will be no hard or fast program.

DR. BROWN FAMOUS

Dr. Walter H. Brown, director of the demonstration, gained fame as health officer of Bridgeport, Conn., where he made an enviable record in the development of that city for the promotion and protection of the health of its citizens. He is also distinguished for service with the Red Cross and later with the American Commission for the Prevention of Tuberculosis in France.

"In New York and the east my assistants are busy selecting and organizing the greatest staff of medical and health scientists ever gotten together. But I won't have them come in here and do a lick of work until the proper time comes."

"Then," says Dr. Brown, "we'll put this town and county under the microscope of science. Maybe we'll be able to teach Mansfield, and thus every other community in the country, how to insure the health and happiness of children of all ages. Maybe Mansfield will show us that we are all wrong in our theories."

MRS. HOOPLE GAVE HER ANNUAL CHRISTMAS EUCHRE PARTY.

SANDERS AGREES TO WRESTLE HILL HERE NEXT WEEK

Ashland Giant is Next Opponent of Local Grappler—Fans are Interested

The big bout for which Appleton fans have been clamoring for many months was assured when Elmer Sanders, the Ashland giant, accepted terms offered by Promoter Elmer Johnston to wrestle George Hill, champion of Wisconsin, here on Wednesday, Dec. 28. It will cost Johnston a barrel of money to bring the Ashland man here but he believes it is worth it in order to settle once for all the controversy which has been raging for more than a year over the relative strength and skill of the two men.

Last year a number of ugly stories were circulated around town that Hill had been defeated in Ashland by Sanders but Hill always said he had never wrestled the big man and offered as proof the fact that he was in Appleton the night he was supposed to have wrestled in Ashland. Hill has always charged that another man had used his name in order to get a match with the Ashland man and had been defeated.

Efforts were made all last year to bring Sanders here for a match but the big fellow wouldn't consent to come. This year so much pressure has been brought to bear on him that he finally accepted Johnston's terms and is training hard for the match. He always keeps himself in good condition and will be in tip top shape for the battle here.

Hill is training for his match with Paul Martinson in Oshkosh Wednesday evening. Henry Stoff, middleweight wrestler, is here working out with him and the two men are spending several hours daily on the road and on the mat. Several Appleton fans will go to Oshkosh Wednesday evening to see the battle with the big Dane.

Groh Has A Way All Of His Own

By Billy Evans

They say if you are a star, you are bound to be different. If you are not temperamental, as a great many stars are, then you must have a style that differs from the ordinary "critter."

Heine Groh has every right to be classed as a star on that basis. However, Groh has great natural ability, plus a quick thinking brain, which really entitles him to such ranking.

No great, or even good hitter in the history of the game, takes a position in the batter's box that in any way shapes up with that of Groh.

When a batter steps into the box, it is often said that he faces the pitcher. That goes literally for Groh. He stands directly facing the pitcher, with bat on the shoulder or waving in front of him. He whirls suddenly when the pitcher delivers the ball, and steps into it, much the same as the ordinary batter.

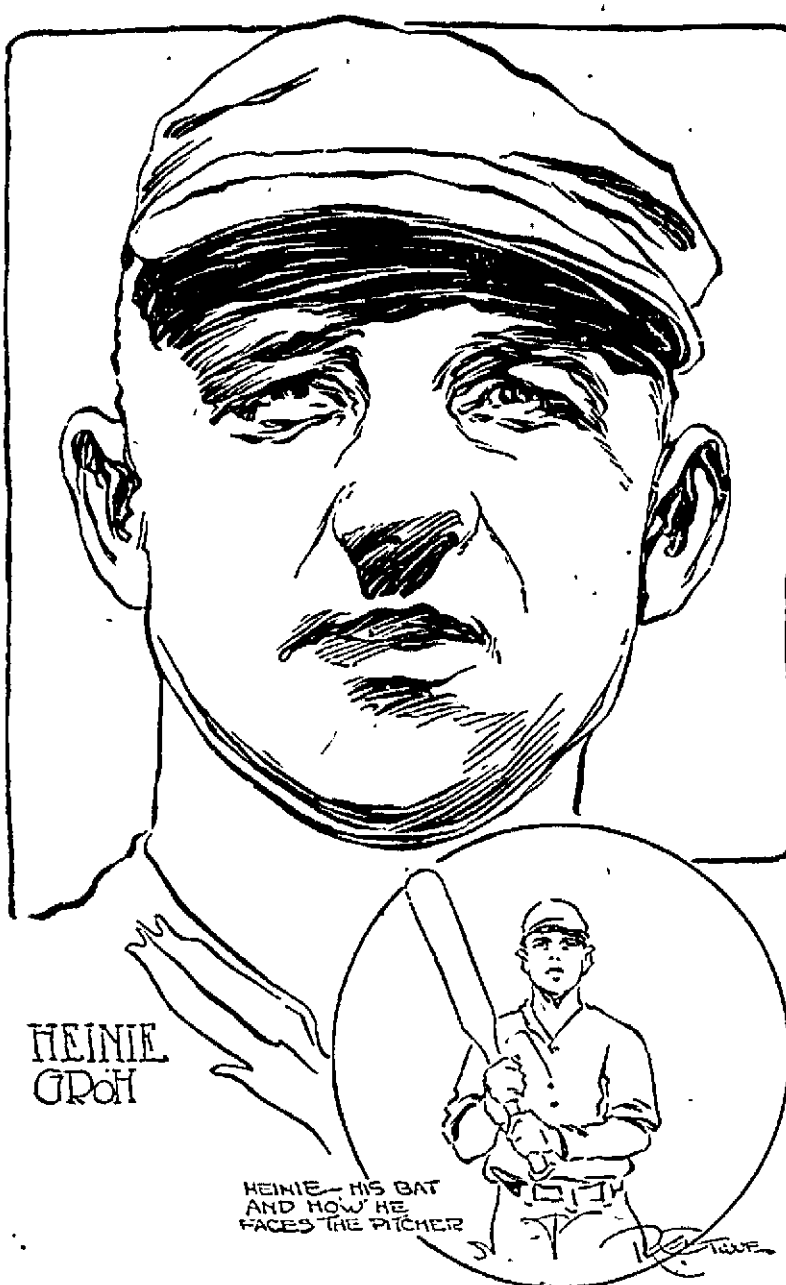

Groh's stance is most peculiar. However, it is very effective, as Groh always bats around .300. He claims his style prevents weakness on curve balls, as it gives the batsman no chance to pull away from the plate. Rather it forces him to step directly into the ball.

Groh is far from being a youngster. He is 34 years of age. It hardly seems possible that he has over five years more of service in him. That makes the price paid all the more astounding.

Groh is small in stature, being about five feet seven inches tall and weighing about 160 pounds.

He is regarded as one of the best place hitters in baseball. This makes him in the hit and run play, a style used so much by McGraw.

In Frankie Frisch and Heine Groh, McGraw now has the two star third sackers in the National league. Some say he will shift Frisch to second, as just as probable Groh will play that lane.

No feature of football is more spectacular than the kicking end of the game.

The punt, place kick or drop kick in football, carries much the same thrill as the stolen base in baseball.

The onside kick at one time was a pretty play, but of late years most of the coaches have discarded it entirely for some reason.

In only one game of any importance was the onside kick worked to advantage last season. That was a western game, in which the play resulted in the only score of the game.

The kicking end of football gives a big thrill, because the element of uncertainty goes with it. There is always a chance the kick will be blocked, that the kicker will "fliver," or the opposing player fumble.

Since the west was generally supreme in football, it was in keeping with the records, that the leading drop kicker of the country should hail from the west.

The drop kicking honors of the country go to Robert Fitzke of Wyoming, according to the dope we have at hand on the season's play.

Fitzke came through with six drop kicks, all of them scored in games against standard opponents. Four of the six kicks were made from a distance of 40 yards or better. His greatest effort came in the game with University of Idaho, when he registered from the 45-yard line.

Paul Castner of Notre Dame also enjoyed some of the spotlight for classy kicking. In the Rutgers game, which was played at the Polo Grounds before a critical eastern crowd, Castner gave the experts something to talk about, by drop kicking successfully from the 43 and 48 yard lines. In the game with Purdue he repeated, scoring from the 23 and 35-yard lines.

Bo McMillin, who won fame in all other departments during the season, broke into the kicking end strong by making three drop kicks against Tulane in the final game of the season.—B. E.

SELECT HONORARY FIVE AT SCHOOL

Jess Tollefson, center on the senior class basketball of the high school was selected by Robert Grant, official tournament referee, as captain and center on the mythical all-tournament five. Other players awarded places on the team are Stewart Mills and Thomas Davis, juniors, forwards; Theodore Van Wyk, freshman, and R. Ashman, junior, guards.

MAY PICK SYRACUSE MAN TO LEAD EVANSTON

Syracuse, N. Y.—Harry Robertson of Boston, director of freshman athletics at Syracuse university and former Orange gridiron star, has been offered the position of head coach of football at Northwestern university at Evanston, Ill. Northwestern is the second university to open negotiations for Robertson's services as football coach next year. An offer to the Orange freshman coach as football mentor at New York university was announced.

Robertson's contract with the Syracuse Athletic association calls for his services as freshman basketball coach this winter and freshman baseball coach in the spring, so it is certain he will remain here until summer. At present, Robertson favors the New York university offer, it is reported. Northwestern is making a strong bid for his services. Robertson expects to close negotiations with one or the other institution this winter.

CANTON BULL DOGS DEFEAT ALL STARS

Washington, D. C.—The Canton Bulldogs defeated the Washington All-Stars in a loosely played football game here on Sunday, 28 to 14. Killinger, Canton's all-America quarter-back, went through all the motions of the game, but his heart wasn't in it. Saturday's struggle had tired him out. Whatever laurels there were for brilliant playing were awarded to Eddy Boynton, Washington's quarter.

ST. PAUL TEAM PLAYS NEW LONDON WEDNESDAY

Members of St. Paul Lutheran Young Peoples society will meet in St. Paul school at 7:45 sharp Wednesday evening for a business meeting. The session will be adjourned in time for a basketball game in Bushey gymnasium at 9 o'clock when St. Paul and New London Trinity Lutheran teams of the Fox River Valley Lutheran league will play. The young people will return to the school after the game for a social hour at which the New London players and visitors will be guests.

Friday night St. Paul players will play Northwestern college, Watertown, in Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

NEENAH GOING WILD OVER CAGE GAME WEDNESDAY

Twin City Fans Backing up Their Confidence With Hard Cash

Manager George Dame of the Appleton basketball team will send the same team against Neenah Wednesday night that he used to defeat Two Rivers last Friday, he announced Tuesday. Stark will play center, Basing and Kubitz will be used as forwards and Taylor and Norrington, with Waterpool and Kaner in reserve, as guards. This makes a great combination which will cause Neenah plenty of trouble.

Neenah fans are showing an interest in the forthcoming games. More than $200 has been wagered here by Neenah fans that their favorites will cop Wednesday night's game and they are even offering money that Neenah will win Thursday night's battle in the local arena. Neenah and Appleton each have won two games in the league. Both got off to poor starts but are improving rapidly. The rivalry between the two cities and the fighting qualities of the two teams insures a good game.

Alken "Zigzag" Thompson, of Lawrence college, Ind., an athletic center in Battle Creek, Mich., will be here to take part in the Dec. 27 and the local squad will go to Fond du Lac the next night. Manager Dame expects to use Thompson as a center.

Sport Views And News

The baseball magnates surely are having their hands full trying to find a way out of the draft problem. The minor leaguers aren't any too anxious to tie up with the big fellows in any sort of a players' agreement because they have been reaping a harvest by individual sales. However, a compromise proposal would prove beneficial to both the majors and minors in the long run and it is to be hoped that the greed for the dollar won't block the national game.

Johnny Wilson is going to get another chance. The middleweight champ has been signed by Tex Rickard to fight Harry Groh, the Pittsburgh bear cat, in New York about the middle of February. Rickard must have had a change of heart. It wasn't so long ago that he publicly announced that Wilson would never fight again for him. The Boston Italian is skating on pretty thin ice these days and if he should slip once more, he will be through for good.

The action of the Wisconsin Basketball league's magnates in awarding player Elliott to the Green Bay five is to be commended. Rules are made to be kept and the sooner the players discover that the magnates are going to enforce the regulations the better it will be for all concerned. For a long time, the players have run wild but those wild and woolly days are all over.

BUSHEY TEAM LOSES TO BERLIN, 44 TO 23

The Bushey Business college basketball team was defeated Friday evening, 44 to 23 by the Berlin Athletic club at Berlin. The local team was unable to get started in the first half but rallied in the last period and was outscored that half by only one field goal. The Bushey team started as follows: Krammerer and Kunde, guards; Anderson, center; Kisow and Roudhammer, forwards.

L. L. Churchill of Waupaca, was in Appleton on business Monday. J. S. O'Brien of St. Paul, Minn., transacted business in Appleton Tuesday.

EVERY HUMAN BEING NEEDS MILK

Milk is the one essential food of the whole world because it contains all the elements necessary to the health, strength and growth of the human body.

With all of these benefits, there are great drawbacks, too. The greatest care must be taken of milk to avoid illness and death. It must be kept scrupulously clean. Its temperature must be guarded carefully.

An intimate knowledge of the characteristics of milk is highly essential in handling it and using it as food.

There is a free booklet on this subject which should be vitally interesting and beneficial to everyone. It was prepared by one of the world's greatest experts. To get it all you have to do is fill out and mail the coupon below, enclosing two cents in stamps for return postage. To save your name and address are written legibly.

TEXAS FAVORITE WITH BIG LEAGUES

Connie Mack is Last Manager to Pick Spring Training Camp

By Henry L. Farrell
By United Press, Leased Wire
New York—Texas continues to be the most favored training grounds for the big managers.

With the exception of Connie Mack all of the major pilots have selected training sites and six of the sixteen have been chosen in Texas. Florida and Louisiana are next with three clubs each, Arkansas getting two and California one.

San Antonio will harbor two clubs, the Giants and the Tigers and Hot Springs will have a pair in the Pirates and the Red Sox.

Eight of the clubs return to the scene of last year's spring activities. The Giants return to San Antonio, the Pirates go back to Hot Springs and the Cards work again in Orange, Texas.

The Braves, who worked out last year in Galveston, switch over to St. Petersburg. The Robins will go to Jacksonville instead of New Orleans. The Reds passed up Cisco and will go to Mineral Wells instead. The Cubs will train on Catalina Islands instead of a Pasadena and the Phils switch over from Gainesville to Leesburg.

Only two changes have been made so far in the American league. The Yanks are going to New Orleans instead of Shreveport, and the White Sox have chosen Seguin, Texas, instead of Waukegan.

The Indians return to Dallas, the Browns to Bogalusa, the Senators to Tampa, the Red Sox to Hot Springs and the Tigers to Hot Wells, right near San Antonio.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETEERS KEEP UP THEIR PRACTICE

Candidates for the high school basketball squad resumed practice in the high school gymnasium Monday afternoon. The candidates used Alexander gymnasium Friday evening and Saturday morning to acquaint them with a strange floor. Practically all of the home games will be played in Lawrence gymnasium.

FORESTERS LOSE TO BLACK CREEK QUINT

The Catholic Order of Foresters basketball team, handicapped by an exceedingly slippery floor, lost to the Black Creek city team at Black Creek Monday night, 28 to 16. Verbrick and Reider played their usual brilliant game but the entire squad was slowed up and did not play its usual good game.

LEAGUE TAKES STAND ON JUMPING PLAYER

Directors of the Central Wisconsin Basketball league, at a meeting in Fond du Lac Saturday night ruled that Elliot, New London basketball player, shall be barred from playing with all teams in the league except Green Bay which has prior rights to his services. Green Bay may release him to other teams if it desires. Elliot, it is said, refuses to play with Green Bay and it is probable he will be barred from the league.

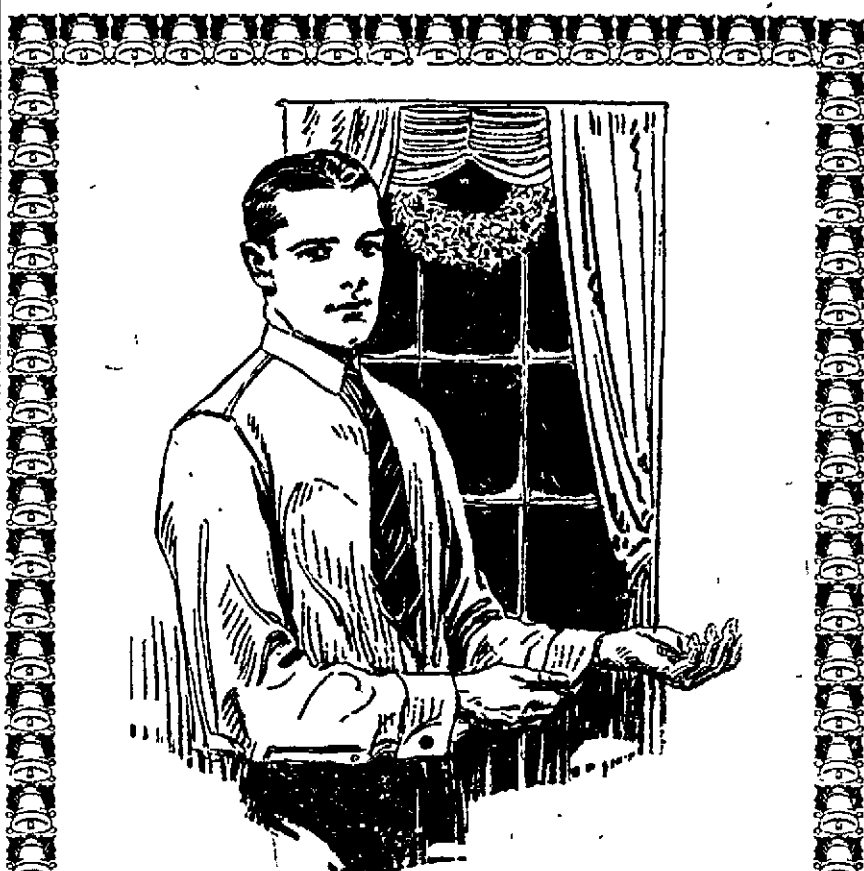

LONG TRIP PLANNED FOR BUSHEY QUINT

The Bushey Business college basketball team will start on its annual Christmas vacation trip Dec. 26. The first two games will be played at Leona next Monday and Tuesday nights. Other games on the journey include

HUGGINS TALKING BIG DEALS IN BASEBALL

New York—Two big deals put over by the New York Yankees are expected to be announced before Miller Huggins, manager of the club, leaves for his home in Cincinnati. It is thought sure that Bob Veach, Detroit outfielder, will come to the club in one deal, and two pitchers are said to figure in the other. Huggins announced last night that he had signed Glenn Killinger, Penn State's all-American buck and an infield baseball star. Harry Frazee, president of the Boston Red Sox, is expected to announce completion of a deal by which he sends Stuffy McInnis to the Cleveland Indians for Elmer Smith, George Burns and a pitcher.

BUICK springs are the result of twenty years of careful painstaking research work in combining resiliency and toughness in steel.

Have you ever seen a Buick held up along the road because of a broken spring? The reason you do not is because Buick springs are so constructed that they will withstand millions of shocks without appreciable wear.

Really there is no use denying that driving a Buick is like flying.

CHINA WIRELESS WILL COMPLETE WORLD CIRCUIT

Objections to Far East Stations Fade After Arms Conference Assemblies
 (Special to Post-Crescent)
 By Wm. Philip Shantz
 Washington.—The last obstacles in the way of an All-American system of wireless communications which will glide the globe within the next 18 months have finally been swept away—the first definite result of the calling of the Pacific conference.
 Experts and materials are now on the way to China, where the Federal TOILER IN EUROPE HAS SAME TROUBLE AS WORKER IN U. S.

Whiting Williams Finds Laboring Class Seeking Entry of Better Times
 Q. How many battleships have we and what size guns do they carry? E. E. M.
 A. The total number of battleships, guaranteed equal opportunities for all in China.
 In 1900 both countries had acquired in the American policy of the open door in the Orient. In 1901 both had pledged, in writing, to maintain the status quo in the Far East, at which time there existed a Sino-American treaty of more than 40 years' standing wherein China agreed that any privilege granted any other nation would "at once freely ensure to the benefit of the United States, its public officers, merchants and citizens."
 Though for 20 years all "open door" pledges had been tested all over the lot and with perfect safety, the Washington conference automatically promised to throw the Chinese gamb into civil relief.
 Then, just as Japan at once began to try to get out of Shanghai gracefully, promised the evacuation of Siberia, and urged the early and immediate settlement of the Yape controversy, so did opposition to America's wireless claims in China melt like snow in the sun.

POSTOFFICE ABLE TO HANDLE HOLIDAY RUSH

Business is so good at the postoffice here that it has been necessary to enlarge the working force, according to Herman J. Trenek, assistant postmaster. In spite of the pressure and the immense amount of mail that is being handled the work is going on smoothly and postal officials are confident of taking care of the rush in an efficient manner.

Y. M. C. A. PLAN TO RAISE FUNDS IS NEW

Sixteen-hundred dollars has been pledged thus far by members of the Y. M. C. A. toward the $2,600 fund which is being raised in the local membership for extension work—foreign and domestic—of the Y. M. C. A. Sixty contributions have made up the $1,600. More than 140 more pledges are needed, ranging in amounts from $1 to $25, to put the local Y. M. C. A. over the top.

The Appleton association is the first in the history of the Y. M. C. A. to attempt to support the supervisory agencies by confining its campaigns to the membership. The entire central region of the Y. M. C. A. is watching the experiment of the Appleton association.

CARELESS AUTO DRIVER BREAKS TROLLEY POLE

An unidentified driver turned the corner at the intersection of Meade and Northside, at such speed at 9 o'clock Monday night that his automobile struck a trolley pole of the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power Co. which it broke off a few feet above the ground. So far as is known the driver escaped injury and got away without his license number being learned. He was driving a heavy touring car which apparently was not damaged. The traction company's telephone line was torn down for about a block.

PUT IN LABOR SAVING DEVICE IN POSTOFFICE

No longer will the rural carriers have to carry their baskets of mail matter up to the balcony in the postoffice where they route the mail. The postoffice carpenter is making a temporary hoist to pull the baskets up to the balcony. This must be done by hand but the new hoist to be erected later will be operated by electricity. The Langstadt-Meyer Co. of this city was awarded the contract for the hoist by the government. The hoist or elevator will be provided with all new appliances, and will cost $640. It will be installed within two weeks.

GRASS IS SPEAKER AT CARRIER BOY BANQUET

Judge Henry Grass of Green Bay, will be the chief speaker at a banquet for carrier boys of the Appleton Post-Crescent in the Y. M. C. A. at 6:30 Wednesday evening. About 100 boys, making up the carrier force in Appleton, Kaukauna, Combined Locks, Little Chute and Kimberly, will be guests of the company. The boys have been instructed to meet at the Post building at 6:15 and march to the Y. M. C. A.

TOURISTS DON'T GO TO POSTOFFICE FOR FACTS

Postoffices have been used as information bureaus during the last summer following an order by Postmaster General Hays which provides postmasters shall give information to tourists concerning roads and camping sites. Though this order has been in effect since last summer, there has not been a request made for information at the local office according to Assistant Postmaster Herman J. French. The order provided that an employee be delegated to impart information, but local postoffice officials did not delegate anyone for the work because of the absence of information seekers.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

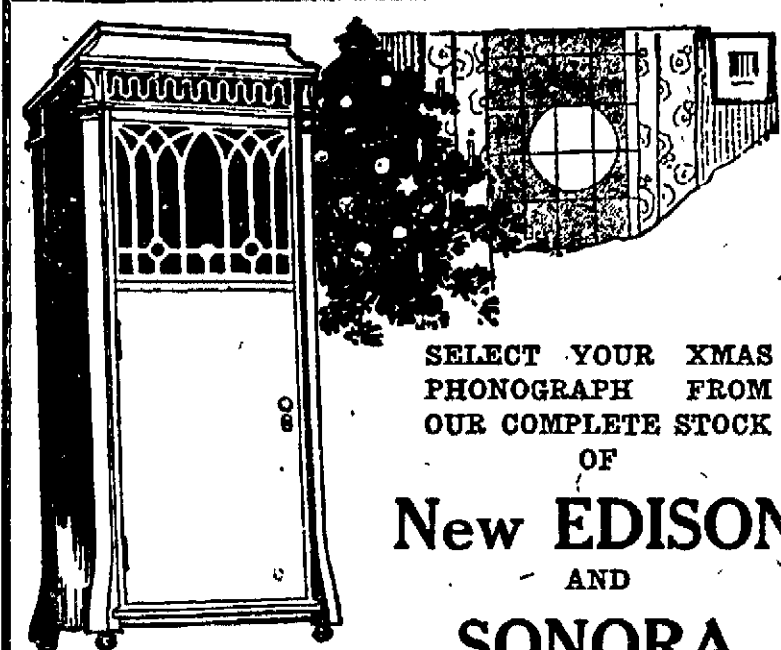

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $1.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrup is a combination of pine and sugar. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and tastes very pleasant. You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for a 2½ ounce of Pinex with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.
